COMMUNITY MEETING
The future of the Albertsons site: July 27, 7:30-9 pm
Rockridge Library.

Report by Hiroko Kurihara, Committee Chair

Albertsons to Close; Community to Meet

Implications of the Albertsons Supermarket closing, set for August 6, will be considered at a community meeting to be held Thursday, July 27, 7:30-9 p.m. in the Rockridge Library. Albertsons sold 37 of its Northern California stores to Cerberus Capital Management, Supervalu, and CVS. Cerberus now owns the Rockridge store and is preparing to sell it. The closure date is final. The purpose of the meeting is to gather community input that can be shared with the new owners. We hope to have a Cerberus representative present to participate in the discussion.

Rockridge Library's 10th Anniversary Celebration Features 'Writers on Reading'

by John Gussman, Friends of the Rockridge Library

The greatest part of a writer's time is spent in reading, in order to write: a man will turn over half a library to make one book. — Samuel Johnson

Books are a languid pleasure. — Montaigne

Is the reading of books, by those who are authors themselves, part of an industrial cycle, as Dr. Johnson seems to have thought? Or is it more like spreading compost in the sun, in the hope that something will grow? Or is it just luxury and indolence? The interesting question of the relationship between reading and writing, from the standpoint of those who write for publication, will be aired by a panel of distinguished local authors in early September.

The discussion, titled "Writers on Reading," will be the centerpiece of the Rockridge Branch Library's 10th Anniversary celebration, now being organized by the Friends of the Rockridge Library, in collaboration with the staff of the Rockridge Branch.

The overall celebration — including ceremonial presentations, festive displays, and refreshments — will be held on the evening of September 12, from 7 to 9 pm, at the Rockridge Branch Library, 5366 College Avenue. The doors will open at 6:30 p.m. The panel discussion will be held in the community meeting room upstairs, with special activities for kids down below.

Meet New OPD North Oakland Commander

by Susan Montauk, Chair
 Greater Rockridge NCPC

The Rockridge community will have its first chance to meet Lieutenant Jim Meeks, the recently appointed Oakland Police Department North Oakland Commander, at the July 20 Greater Rockridge Neighborhood Crime Prevention Council Town Hall. Others featured on the program are Reed Brothers Security and self-defense and martial arts instructor Vanessa Wilson. Crime rates in Oakland have soared this year and many in Rockridge have adopted a bunker mentality. This is a chance to hear how OPD is coping and how you can create a safer environment at home and on the street.

Lieutenant Meeks was born and raised in Oakland, attended Oakland public schools and UC Berkeley, and is currently living with his wife and three children in Castro Valley. He would prefer to live in Oakland but housing prices preclude that choice. At the very least, he would like the City Council to consider extending low interest housing loans to new recruits to make it possible for them to live in the city NCPC Meeting Agenda, page 13

■ ELECTION: The NCPC Annual Election of officers will be held at the Town Hall Meeting. Anyone over 18 who lives in NCPC beats 12Y or 13X is invited to run for any of the offices of Chair, Vice-Chair, Secretary or Treasurer. Nominations will be taken from the floor. See www.rockridgencpc.com for information about GRNCPC boundaries and the election.

RCPC Seeks Board Member

Have you been pondering ways to become more involved in your community? Well, ponder no longer. The Rockridge Community Planning Council (RCPC) is seeking qualified applicants to fill a vacancy for a two-year term on its board of directors.

RCPC's mission is "to preserve and enhance the unique character of the Rockridge neighborhood." It has done that for more than 20 years as a 501c3 non-profit corporation through careful monitoring of land use and advocacy for improvements in the cultural and physical amenities of the community. The Rockridge Library and FROG Park had their genesis in RCPC, and The Rockridge News has been faithfully published by RCPC since 1986.

Boardmembers attend monthly evening board meetings and quarterly Town Hall meetings. They are also expected to become involved in at least one committee, such as Land Use, Traffic and Pedestrian Safety, The Rockridge News, RCPC Website, Parks and Open Spaces and Schools. New committees may be formed by members with special interests. The time commitment for this position is from 5-10 hours a month.

Anyone 18 years or older who is a resident of Rockridge within the RCPC borders (see www.rockridge.org for RCPC boundaries) is eligible to apply. Please send a letter by July 31 describing yourself and your reasons for wanting to join the board to RCPC, 5245 College Avenue, PMB 311, Oakland CA 94618. Call 869-4200 with questions.

Focus: Rockridge BART Plaza Plans

by Bob Franklin, BART Boardmember, and Stephanie Upp, RCPC Boardmember

A portion of revenue from BART parking charges, earmarked for access improvements, is now available to partially fund improvements to the Rockridge BART plaza. These funds offer the Rockridge community an exciting opportunity to begin planning for an overall redesign of the plaza area.

Creating an improved public space around the Rockridge BART station area on College Avenue was the focus of the June RCPC Town Hall meeting. Twenty-three people from the community, the Rockridge District Association (RDA), RCPC, and BART met to provide input on moving this project forward.*

Some of the ideas voiced at the Town Hall meeting include:

- Real-time BART and bus departure information on the street level
- A business directory with a community bulletin board

- Additional lighting to the area under the dark overpasses
- Additional benches
- Ivy removal and landscaping
- Fenced-in play area for tots
- A community-driven, professionally guided redesign of the entire plaza area.

This wish list closely matches one developed by earlier UnderBART efforts. During 2003-2004, the UnderBART committee crafted a vision statement, which included specific features on how to better utilize this central location. A 2004 survey

* RCPC apologizes for any inconvenience to those who went to the BART station expecting the Town Hall to move its discussion there as mentioned in the June issue of The Rockridge News. Group participants decided to continue the robust discussion in the library.

Temescal Begins Neighborhood Planning Process

by Jane Brunner,
District One Councilmember

Almost 200 Temescal residents attended a meeting on April 27, to begin the process of developing a neighborhood plan for Temescal. The purpose is to develop guidelines that can frame the type, size and style of new buildings in the Temescal area for years to come. Comments and questions from neighbors reflected both the diversity and intelligence of our residents.

One issue heard at the meeting was the need for more information regarding future development in Temescal. People wondered whether AC Transit will be improved enough to handle more people on the Telegraph and Shattuck traffic corridors. Others asked what effect additional density will have on traffic and parking in the neighborhood. Some questioned whether new development will be good for the pedestrian-friendliness of the area.

My office is planning two separate panel discussions over the summer that will bring experts in to discuss what future development could look like. Please save the dates for the following meetings:

MEETING #1:
Density, Transit, Parking, Traffic
July 13, 2006, 7-9 PM
Faith Presbyterian Church,
430 49th Street

MEETING #2:
Buildings and Community Character
Date/Time to be determined
Location to be determined

To follow those meetings, my office is also planning a half-day design workshop in September. Workshop participants will look at maps of the available buildable lots in Temescal, match building heights and styles to the locations, and develop a detailed plan of what could work for the neighborhood.

The follow-up the workshop will be a presentation by planning staff of options for a neighborhood plan that reflects the ideas derived from the four meetings.

Please contact me directly at 238-7001 to be notified about these meetings.

Residents Voice EIR Concerns At Caltrans Caldecott Hearing

by Kent Deverell, RCPC Board Member
Co-Chair, Fourth Bore Coalition

When Caltrans staff invited residents from Rockridge and surrounding communities to comment publicly on the environmental review the agency prepared for the proposed new Caldecott Tunnel bore (fourth bore), they got an unexpected earful from neighborhood representatives concerned about impacts of the project.

Held June 15 at Claremont Middle School, the public hearing was planned to give Alameda County residents a forum to ask about the project and comment on Caltrans's Draft Environmental Impact Report (DEIR). Released in May, the DEIR provides Caltrans's assessment of the environmental impact of the project related to noise, air pollution, local traffic and construction.

Following an overview of the project and proposed construction methods presented by Caltrans, more than 60 speakers representing a variety of neighborhood groups, decried the inadequacy of the DEIR and pressed Caltrans for a more thorough and comprehensive study consistent with the scope of the project.

Speaking on behalf of a number of groups, Ann Smulka, Fourth Bore Coalition Co-Chair, said, "We have members with decades of experience in these types of projects, and their overwhelming consensus is that the [DEIR] contains a superficial analysis of many of the localized, project-specific impacts, regional and systemic impacts, and cumulative impacts of the project. Almost the entire Rockridge area was excluded from the study, for example. This is a massive project, and North Oakland and Berkeley deserve better as we are the areas most affected, both during the five years of around-the-clock construction and beyond."

The Fourth Bore Coalition represents organizations on the Alameda County side of the tunnel, including Claremont Elmwood Neighborhood Association (CENA), RCPC, FROG Park, the North Hills-Phoenix Association, Parkwoods (a housing association on the north side of Highway 13 near the Oakland side of the tunnel entrance), and the Montclair Traffic and Pedestrian Safety Improvement Council.

Over 200 residents from Rockridge and surrounding communities attended the public hearing.

Speakers in support of the project consisted primarily of representatives from local labor unions, a handful of residents who spoke of the perceived benefits of an improved reverse commute, and a representative from the Oakland Chamber of Commerce, who mentioned the possibility for increasing the inflow of shoppers to the Oakland area.

The City of Oakland is currently drafting a formal response to the DEIR. Rockridge residents are encouraged to contact our City Councilmember Jane Brunner with their views: jbrunner@oaklandnet.com or phone 510/238-7001.

Residents are also encouraged to submit comments on the project to Caltrans by July 12, the close of the official public comment period. Comments can be submitted via e-mail to Caldecott_Public_Comments@dot.ca.gov or mail to:

Rockridge Spotlight: Artist Peter Heelan

by Janet Somers

Peter Heelan, carpenter, bagpipe player, and oil painter, just got back from his native Ireland, where an exhibition of his landscapes and farmhouses was held at a Dublin gallery.

Peter Heelan

“It was the first time Irish people have seen my paintings,” he said recently from his living room, where George the cat had plopped himself down on the floor. “It was great. I was very happy with the show.”

Heelan, 51, is a craftsman who also makes furniture for his house in the workshop-garage where he paints. “I see painting almost as a trade, a skill, something that you can learn,” he said. “I’m in love with the work itself – the color, and playing with it.”

Although Heelan says he “bullied his way” into friendships with local artists to learn from them, he is mostly self-taught. “Ever since we moved into this house, I’ve had a desire to see paintings on the wall,” he said, referring to the 1913 two-story craftsman he lives in with his wife, Sabra Daly, their daughter, Nora, 15, and their son, Niall, 11. “We couldn’t afford them, so I decided to do them myself. I got a book out of the Rockridge Library – ‘How to Paint with Oils.’ I was an optimist! I was just groping around. I learned all about composition; I learned about color. I’ve always had an interest in impressionism. The California impressionists from the 20’s and 30’s, like Armin Hansen, are a constant source of wonder to me.”

Heelan is continuing in a long line of artists here. “Rockridge has a tremendous history,” he said. “The Society of Six was more or less born in this area; they were colorists. [Painter] Louis Siegriest lived down by the DMV; the Siegriest house is kitty-corner to the DMV parking lot. And [graphic artist] Maurice Logan’s family were caretakers of Lake Temescal.”

Heelan paints mostly landscapes of Ireland and northern California. He usually starts with photographs, composing them with painting in mind. “I take reels and reels of film,” he said. “I do now have a philosophy of painting, about the order of importance of things to happen for somebody to enjoy a painting. It shouldn’t spin you out or leave a mystery corner where you get stuck; it should ideally encourage a path that doesn’t eject you from looking at it.” The idea for the exhibition came about a year and a half ago when Heelan, who travels to Ireland every couple of years to visit family, was sitting in the Cobalt Gallery and Café in Dublin with Mick O’Dea, a well-known Irish painter and friend. O’Dea introduced Heelan to the gallery’s owner, who agreed to a show; it ran mid-May through mid-June.

Heelan moved to the U.S. at age 23. “I was working [as a carpenter] in Dublin and I met somebody who was coming out,” he said. “We landed in New York and visited his relations, and then we hitchhiked down to Pittsburgh. Then we struck out west. Essentially, we ran out of money here.”

His hair is cleancut these days, but Heelan says he had “hair down to here” and a long, flowing beard then. The vagabonds landed in San Francisco, slept on the floors of friends’ houses, and hung out at the Plough and Stars, an Irish pub on Clement Street, where Heelan jammed Irish music with other musicians. There he met his wife, who plays Irish music on the concertina, an accordion-like instrument. They moved to Rockridge 14 years ago. Ever since, friends have been coming over regularly to play, and on weekends neighbors can sometimes hear the rhythmic, plaintive strains of traditional Irish music coming from the big brown-shingled house.

“The way I see the world of art is, there’s me, and then it opens out into infinity,” Heelan said, making an expansive gesture with his arms. “Learn, learn, learn; get better, get better, get better. I’m trying, trying; that’s all I’m doing.” He smiled.

AND FUN ACTIVITIES WITH THE LIBRARIANS FOR KIDS 6 AND OLDER

panelists will draw upon a collective wealth of experience in various genres of writing:

Maxine Hong Kingston is a highly acclaimed author of both fiction and nonfiction. Her memoir, Woman Warrior: Memories of a Girlhood Among Ghosts (1976), and its sequel, China Men (1980), both received the National Book Critics Circle Award. A stage adaptation of Woman Warrior premiered at the Berkeley Repertory Theatre in 1994, and went on to other stages around the country. Ms. Kingston's most recent book is a work of nonfiction, The Fifth Book of Peace (2003).

Jon Carroll, the well-known writer and columnist, has had a colorful career in periodical literature, having served as editor for such publications as Rolling Stone, the Village Voice, and New West. Since 1982, he has been with the San Francisco Chronicle.

April Sinclair was transplanted to Oakland from her native Chicago. She is the author of three novels which have attracted wide notice for their vivid depictions of urban social life, as experienced by the postwar generation of African-Americans. Her first novel, Coffee Will Make You Black, was named 1994 Book of the Year in the Young Adult Fiction Category by the American Library Association and earned her the Carl Sandburg Award from the Friends of the Chicago Public Library. Subsequent novels include Ain't Gonna Be The Same Fool Twice (1995) and I Left My Back Door Open (1999). Before taking up her pen as a novelist, Ms. Sinclair worked for over 15 years in community service programs, directing a countywide hunger coalition, and teaching reading and writing to inner-city children and youth. She continues to promote the cause of literacy inside prisons, juvenile halls, alternative schools, and drug rehabilitation centers.

The moderator, Cynthia Gorney, is a nationally known journalist. From the mid-1970s to the 1990s, she was affiliated with the Washington Post, serving for a time as South America bureau chief. Since 1998, she has been a professor at the U.C. Berkeley Graduate School of Journalism. Her work has appeared in various magazines, including The New Yorker, the New York Times Magazine, and Mother Jones. Ms. Gorney has published two books, including a 1998 book on the nationwide controversy over abortion.

■ In May, committee members heard from local developer Ron Kriss proposing a new 51-unit building with 5,000 sq. ft. of retail space on Telegraph Avenue in the Temescal District. The committee is following this because the same developer recently received approval from the City to build 67 units at the corner of Telegraph and 51st Street and has acquired The Kingfish Café and Pub site in the 5200 block of Claremont Avenue.

■ In the Fairview Park area of Rockridge, residents are seeking changes in the operation and upkeep of Jack In The Box.

■ Newly elected RCPC boardmember Annette Floystrup and Land Use Committee Chair Hiroko Kurihara met with Justin Horner from Councilmember Brunner's office to discuss C-31 zoning along College Avenue and Conditional Use permits issued for the area. This item will be brought to the RCPC board for further discussion.

■ A new California Asian Noodle House will soon occupy the former Double Rainbow site at the corner of Claremont and College Avenues. The owner, Louis Kao, is locally based and committed to the neighborhood. He expressed an interest in working on pedestrian safety issues. Design of the "green" restaurant will be presented to the Land Use Committee once it is completed. Expect to see hot as well as cold noodle dishes that include flying tobiko and seared ahi sometime in September.

HOME SECURITY BRINGS A BALANCE OF RISK

Editor:

The Rockridge News, June issue, had a great article with some specific suggestions on how to help prevent crime. The suggestion that caught my eye was "Research the best kind of locks for your home. For instance, a front-door inside key lock is recommended over a typical dead bolt."

Because my door has glass panels, I fear a break-in and I've installed that kind of double-keyed bolt. But they do present possible problems in case of fire or emergency. If a visitor or even a resident needs to make a fast exit in a confused situation like a fire, the need for a key could be a terrible delay. It's a balance of risks and every household has to think carefully about the pros and cons of this question.

Double-key bolts on major exit/entry doors are not allowed by the current fire codes in Oakland, but, personally, I have kept my lock, with an extra key placed nearby.

Progress Report: Hardy Park Improvements

Donation Deadline Extended

by Mike McDonald, RCPC Board and Frog Steering Committee Member

Hardy's Lily Pad Plaza and Kiosk Plans Approved

Final plans for Hardy Park's Lily Pad Plaza and the Information and Donor Recognition Kiosk have been approved. Both projects will be under construction shortly in conjunction with the Phase II projects, and are expected to be completed by early Fall.

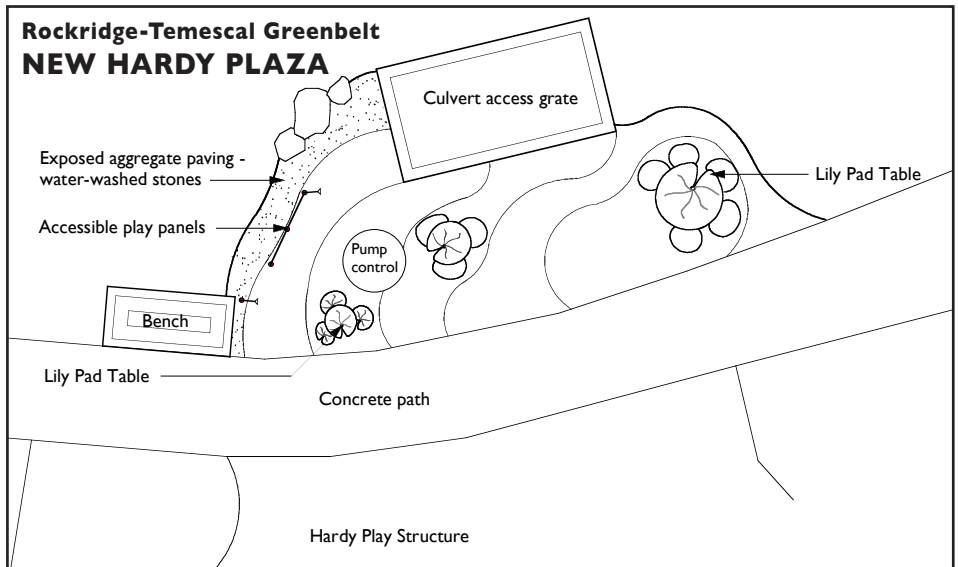

Lily Pad Plaza, located directly across from the play structure area at Hardy Park, will consist of a specially scored and treated concrete surface (to replace the current rocks and dirt), with custom designed "Lily Pad" picnic tables and benches, interactive ADA-accessible play panels, public art, and more. Special thanks to Jennifer Cooper, Frog Vice-Chair, for spearheading the Lily Pad Plaza project and to Chris French of Chris French Steel Fabrication and Mark

Rogero of Concreteworks Studio, both of Oakland. Chris and Mark, along with Josh Feldman, generously donated their time to help design the unique steel and concrete tables and benches that will be fabricated into custom lily pad shapes of varying sizes and heights. Chris and Mark also agreed to donate (in-kind) more than $6,000 towards the fabrication and installation cost of the tables and benches, making the project possible.

The Community Information and Donor Recognition Kiosk will be located at the entrance to Hardy Park and will contain a community bulletin board, detailed maps and history of FROG Park, a donor-recognition plaque area, seating and a tool and supply storage shed. Special thanks to Wilson Associates/Market Hall, whose generous donation of $5,000 made the kiosk possible. Thanks also go out to Lisa Ferrier for design of the kiosk and the donor Industrial Food - What's in Your Dinner?

A brief interview with Michael Pollan, author of The Omnivore's Dilemma

While you probably know the source of your favorite food, did you ever wonder about all the steps involved in its journey to your plate? Berkeley journalism professor Michael Pollan did, and the result is his best seller, The Omnivore's Dilemma: A Natural History of Four Meals. An investigative journalist, Pollan describes meals by tracing the route taken by three major food chains that make up the American diet—industrial, organic and hunter-gatherer. Not since Upton Sinclair's The Jungle has there been a more searing account of the politics and economics of the food we have on our dinner table. I recently had a brief chat with Michael Pollan, a Rockridge resident.

Barry Kaufman: Thank you. I know it has been a busy time for you. How did you come to focus on food as your journalistic interest?

Michael Pollan: I started out writing about nature and gardening. I love nature but I don't like to camp. I am interested in the relationship of humans and nature. I see nature close up. What is the nature of the cup of coffee I drink in the morning? I'm interested in how we engage in the natural world of food and how it engages us. Not until you are in an industrialized potato field, where nothing is alive except for the potatoes, do you begin to understand how our relationship to the natural world has been shaped by modern agricultural chemistry.

BK: You're a professor at the UC Berkeley School of Journalism. The dean of the school is Orville Schell, who at one time was co-owner of Niman Ranch meat. Do you and Dean Schell discuss your interest in food journalism?

MP: Yes, we talk about it a lot. I don't think it's a coincidence that I'm at the UC Berkeley Journalism School. There are not too many journalism schools that would have a position for a food investigative reporter. It's interesting having a university dean with a real understanding of the food industry.

BK: You've seen Al Gore's An Inconvenient Truth. Did you see an overlap of your work on industrialized food and the film's critique of global warming?

MP: [No.] I thought it was a real oversight. He didn't deal with the food issue; the food issue is a big part of the energy issue and global warming. Very few people appreciate it, but over 17% of our fossil fuel use goes into industrial food production. The production of industrial fertilizer, the processing of food and the transportation of food consume a huge amount of fossil fuel. If we all started to buy and eat organic food, we could conserve a great deal of petroleum.

BK: In reading your book, I found myself thinking about Upton Sinclair's The Jungle, which I was required to read in high school. I was wondering if you saw your work as part of the muckraker tradition.

MP: Interesting you should mention that because The Jungle is required reading for my class. What is remarkable now is that the conditions Sinclair described in the meatpacking industry in 1906 are very similar today. We have an exploited immigrant population, a very ineffective federal regulatory agency, and unspeakable cruelty to animals. Things have not gotten much better and in many ways things are worse.

BK: You've been called the "food police." Do you see yourself that way?

MP: It's interesting how the food industry frames my book as a "police action." They spend billions of dollars marketing industrial food and I'm labeled as the food police! I'm offering critical information for people to make other choices, and I'm characterized as representing the forces of control and repression. I think it's Orwellian.

BK: Thank you so much for your time. I understand you're moving from Rockridge to North Berkeley. Rockridge and North Berkeley are great places to live if you have a deep interest in food and the welfare of our planet. Good luck in your future projects.

Michael Pollan urges us to buy locally. We are very fortunate in the Bay Area to have so many year-round farmer's markets. The ingredients for this month's recipe are available in abundance this time of the year at our local farmer's markets.

- 2 garlic cloves, chopped
- 1 tbsp organic honey
- Salt and pepper

1. Blanch green beans in salted boiling water 3-4 minutes. Drain, quickly plunge into ice water, and drain again.
2. Heat olive oil in large pan. Add green beans, radishes and garlic. Cook until vegetables are soft, 5 minutes.
3. Add honey, season with salt and pepper, and cook until vegetables are just beginning to caramelize, about 2-3 minutes more. Serve at room temperature.

Year-Round Temescal-Rockridge Farmer's Market to Open July 16

by Jane Brunner, Councilmember Oakland District 1

My staff and I have been working with the Temescal Telegraph Business Improvement District (BID) for the past year to bring a farmer's market to the Temescal and Rockridge neighborhoods. I am delighted to announce the opening of a new, year-round farmer's market on Sunday, July 16.

In addition to fresh produce, the market will sell flowers, baked goods and fresh fish. We will also be entertained by local musicians performing every week.

The taste of fresh picked vegetables and fruit can't be beat. Also, for urban dwellers like us, it's always fun to get to know our local California farmers.

Please join me and the Temescal Telegraph BID for the grand opening, and remember the market will be open every Sunday from 9 am-1 pm.

Farmer's Market Grand Opening
Sunday, July 16, 2006; Claremont DMV parking lot, 5300 Claremont Avenue, 9 am to 1 pm. (Time of the opening ceremonies to be announced).

August...

for Men and Women

When you walk into "August," you're entering an environmentally conscious store that's also a sleek art gallery. And indeed, the simple white walls, exposed oak beams and concrete floor are the perfect showcase for men's and women's clothing and accessories, many from sustainable manufacturers. The set of massive, horizontal limestone slabs near the recycled wood counter is both a sculpture and a display area for shirts.

Co-owner Louesa Roebuck offers tea to customers as she assists them with their search. Some of the younger set visit with parents to see the store's current sculptures: giant (over 6-foot) white rabbits, made of opalescent-painted Styrofoam, by artist Ama Torrance. Every two months, the store displays new artwork. In July, Louesa features works by the artists of the Creative Growth Gallery in Oakland.

The right wall is dominated by two massive, 20-foot-long reclaimed wood shelves piled high with premium denim, one shelf for men and one for women, organized by waist size. On the left are hanging racks made from reclaimed plumbing pipe from the former Naval base at Mare Island, above shelving made of wood from a 1900s-era warehouse on San Francisco's Embarcadero. The center of the store features tables made from antique barn doors from China. The owners designed the store to combine a primitive, natural feel with clean, modern lines; a beautiful space that's not too fussy.

The name of the store – August – has several origins. It opened in August 2005; both owners were born in August; and the androgynous name has flexibility for a store that carries clothing for both men and women. Louesa ran the Erika Tanov store for a number of years, and before that worked at Chéz Panisse and other food and fashion businesses. At Erika Tanov she worked with co-owner Erin Dracos Scott, and over dinner one evening the two decided to open their own store based on the concept of offering sustainable, organic textiles and cashmeres and premium denim. They sought out Rockridge for its sense of community and beautiful weather.

Denim is a key part of August. Louesa says, "There are many manufacturers who strive to create jeans sustainably, who use cotton from West Africa and Peru, where people are coming together to provide better opportunities for workers and services such as childcare on-site. Denim producers know that people are willing to spend a lot on a pair of jeans because they might wear them almost daily. And jeans are very American – like jazz." Premium denim also has a better fit, and the goal of August is to offer something to fit every body type. August carries unusual lines such as handmade and salvaged denim from the Jean Shop, and organic denim and cotton from Edun, designed by Bono's wife Ali Hewson and manufactured in locally-owned factories in Africa and South America.

THE Rockridge MUSE

by Ortrun Niesar

Rockridge Annual Photography Exhibition

The annual Rockridge photography exhibition will take place in the month of October. The venue is the Rockridge Library, but it is possible that the exhibition will expand out to other locations along College Avenue.

It will be interesting to see how the exhibition concept of personal and community character exploration will play itself out this year. It has always been a moving target, broad in definition and surprising because of it. With Ruth Woodruff chairing the event this year, we can look forward to yet another interpretive twist in what our photographers contribute for your viewing pleasure. Ruth had this to say:

“For this year’s photo exhibit, we encourage participants to think creatively about our theme: ‘Rockridge: How We Live, Work and Play.’ There are many interesting literal interpretations of our beautiful and vibrant neighborhood, and documentary photographs that express this ideal have been the mainstay of our exhibit in the past. These contemporary documents of Rockridge will give us something to look back on as the neighborhood changes and evolves. But photographs trigger memory in odd ways, and sometimes the more arcane and abstract images stir up even deeper, truer responses. We encourage photographers to give us their arcane and abstract vision of contemporary Rockridge.”

If you are looking for subject matter, it is all around you. In past exhibitions we have admired abstract reflections in shop-front windows; collage work; personal family pieces; fast- or slow-moving images of life on College Avenue and of BART; and the quizzical looks on faces of the elderly. And who can forget the adventurous, roving, stuffed penguins of Thomas and Daniel Dalpino? Traditional themes such as flowers, food and babies can always be rendered in exciting new ways. But there is so much more out there to explore. There is activism in this community. If you’re interested in expressing it, and don’t know where to start, attend an RCPC meeting! Or page through this newsletter and see if you are inspired by the issues presented here.

Publishing the Work

As the project develops further each year, the coordinators are looking for ways to archive and publish the work from each year in a collective series. Writers, editors, poets of all ages, give us your thoughts. We see the possibilities for a meaningful collaborative effort.

Please contact us if you are interested in participating.

We hope we have inspired you to join us this year and show us the familiar in a new way, or present to us a new idea about who and what we are in this loveliest of neighborhoods. Here are a few of the rules:

- The exhibit is open to photographers of any age and level of experience. We find this mix particularly refreshing. Parent-and-child teams are encouraged.
- We don’t care what kind of camera you use. It’s the image that counts.
- You must live, work, attend school, or play in and around Rockridge. If you grew up here but have moved, that’s okay too as long as you haven’t lost touch.

The application deadline is August 25. You have most of the month of September to get your work in shape. For complete rules, and information on how you can participate in other ways, please contact Ruth Woodruff at 510/655-6081 or e-mail her at ruthwoodruff@gmail.com.

Oakland Jazz Choir To Perform

Just a quick note: The Oakland Jazz Choir, one of our city’s musical treasures, will perform at the Chapel of the Chimes on Sunday, July 16, 2 p.m. This is a fundraiser for the group. For more information about the concert, and about auditions that will take place later this year, go to www.oaklandjazzchoir.com.

Wishing you a wonderful relaxing summer.

Planning BART Plaza

of BART riders and plaza pedestrians confirmed these priorities. The recent Town Hall was the project's first concerted effort since that time.

Some of these improvements can be started in the near future. Oakland City Councilmember Jane Brunner has committed funding for 10 to 12 benches for the Rockridge Plaza from the College Avenue Bench Project, which installed wooden benches along College Avenue in May 2006.

A committee, open to interested Rockridge residents, is forming to work with an architect to design plans for this area. We then could implement landscape improvements, add the benches, display real-time transit information, and put in a kiosk.

Long-term major changes to this area require securing a grant or a new funding source, which is not unprecedented. The recent remarkably improved 16th and Mission BART plaza in San Francisco is an excellent example of what a strong community vision can do. It turned an unsafe, dirty area into a vibrant, community gathering space. Groups that have expressed an interest in improving the Rockridge plaza include the RCPC, BART, the City of Oakland, the Oakland Police Department, the Rockridge Development Association (RDA), community volunteers, the Bay Area Council, and a Community Benefit District.

Methodist Church Building Repurposed

Members of the Rockridge Methodist Church on Hudson Street at College have voted to discontinue being a church effective July 1. The building, owned by the United Methodist denomination, will be available for community meetings and events for a fee.

The interior of the building will be expanded to include small and large meeting rooms and rehearsal and performance spaces. The main auditorium accommodates 150 people. The handsome room, with good acoustics and sight lines, makes it a particularly attractive venue for acoustic music concerts. The community rooms downstairs are large, light-filled and will soon include a small stage original to the building. Three smaller rooms, each with a capacity of about twenty people, round out the offering.

The rates are reasonable with discounts given to non-profits. For more information, or to come take a look, call 652-4155, or email rumc@sbcglobal.net to Lieutenant. He spends his limited spare time with his church where he serves as deacon and mentors and coaches youth. Lt. Meeks will cover a range of policing topics at the meeting and will answer audience questions.

Home Security

Randy Reed and Mike Salk, partners at Reed Brothers Security on Telegraph Avenue in the Temescal District, will discuss security options for home and automobile. Randy says they make a great team: Mike's expertise is in electronic access, alarm and cameras, and his is in locks, safes, and security iron. In the 1970s, Reed Brothers had fewer than five employees. Today they employ over 50 and operate one of the largest security hardware facilities in California. Although serving much of Central California, the majority of their business is conducted less than 10 miles from their store.

Self-Defense

Vanessa Wilson is an instructor at Mills College, where she teaches women's self-defense and martial arts. She holds a black belt from Hand to Hand Kajukenbo Self-Defense Center in Oakland, where she and her colleagues offer self-defense workshops to the community. Vanessa believes everyone has the potential for empowerment. Self-defense classes provide an opportunity to assess one's strengths and abilities, and feel safer in this world.

The NCPC Town Hall meeting takes place Thursday, July 20, 6:45–9 pm, upstairs in the Rockridge Library Community Room, 5366 College Avenue. Light refreshments will be served before the meeting.

signage; Ian Read of Level 4 Studio, LLC, and McDonald Construction, who are donating their time and labor to refine the design and fabricate and install the Kiosk; and St. Onge and Associates Engineering who donated engineering services for the project.

Donations Pouring In: Deadline Extended

Much-needed donations have been pouring in from local residents and businesses in the last month. Given the continued need for funding, and the donation volume and local excitement, the steering committee voted to extend the deadline for donations to August 31. If you haven't yet had a chance to donate, please do so now.

Use the donation form on page 7 or go to www.frogpark.org where you can donate using a credit card or PayPal. Donations are tax deductible.

Volunteers and Maintenance Supervisors Needed

One of the wonderful things about FROG Park is that it is community-built and maintained. Hundreds of neighborhood volunteers came out for the original build five years ago and dozens more donate their valuable time and skills each month to maintain and improve the park. We need all sorts of volunteers for the regular maintenance days. Specifically, to look good and be a fun play place, the park needs several volunteer Maintenance

Supervisors to help coordinate our volunteer days and troubleshoot maintenance during the year.

For more information, contact Volunteer Coordinator Howard Ferrier at hwferrier@sbcglobal.net or phone 510/653-6463.

☛ Save the date: This Fall's volunteer and maintenance day is Saturday, September 16.

What's Next?

As if there could be more... Oh, yes! Stay tuned for reports on the Creek Flow Improvement Project, and a campaign and design competition for a permanent public restroom at Hardy Park. Both projects are spearheaded by Christine Beeman. Contact Christine if you are interested in either project via e-mail at christiebee@sbcglobal.net providing a relaxing atmosphere with open space and lots of room. "Our job is to edit for our customers; not carry everything, but to choose the best," she said. Many of the lines carried by August are theirs exclusively in the East Bay or even the Bay Area.

The women's racks have a lovely variety of clothing, all of which feel and look wonderful. They include minimalist flower-petal-soft cotton dresses and tops from Kristensen du Nord, a blue pleated skirt with green inset pleats from Travata, sage-colored jackets and denim from Sweden's Acne Jeans, and delicate chiffon wrap dresses in pink and green or blue and white patterns from Saltwater. Aoyama Itchome Japanese-style flowered sleeveless dresses look fresh and innovative, and the soft pleated Park Vogel teal jersey V-neck tank dress could have multiple lives in any wardrobe.

The men's racks offer unusual and traditional denim jackets; cashmere polos from Travata (exclusive to the East Bay); hooded shirts from Portland, Maine; and denim from Sweden. August also carries accessories, such as local Sherry Olson's ceramics, John Scott's Asian-inspired vases (found also at Gump's), and Esther Derkx' transfers of photos onto old teapots. They also offer a variety of belts and denim bags, jewelry from Morgana Moore, and imports from Brazil.

Continuing the recycled, reclaimed theme, Louesa recycles fabric into silk-screened, textile business cards, and wraps purchases in organic muslin and twine that can be re-used.
