RCPC Invites Candidates for April Board Election

Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed people can change the world. Indeed, it is the only thing that ever has.

by Ronnie Spitzer, RCPC boardmember

Are you looking to help promote community projects that enhance the quality of life in Rockridge? Are you concerned about crime, schools, traffic, development issues, or parks? Well, Rockridge needs people like you. Serving on the Rockridge Community Planning Council (RCPC) board of directors provides you with the perfect volunteer opportunity to work on these issues and more.

RCPC, a nonprofit, public benefit corporation, represents Rockridge to the city of Oakland on such matters as zoning, development and crime. It acts as a community steward on a variety of issues, ranging from land use to traffic and schools. RCPC has also spearheaded neighborhood

Bus Rapid Transit Meeting: Plans Ignore Concerns

by Jane Kramer, STAND steering committee

Bus Rapid Transit (BRT) is an AC Transit project proposed for Telegraph Avenue, International Boulevard and East 14th Street in Oakland and San Leandro that would remove one lane of traffic for dedicated bus lanes.

Meeting January 20, the East Bay BRT Policy Steering Committee, comprised of AC Transit board members and city council members from Oakland and San Leandro, reviewed preparations for the Final Environmental Impact Study (FEIS) schedule and approval process for the project. ► BRT Ignores Concerns, page 12

I moved back to Rockridge in 2011 after a decade as a litigator on the Peninsula. It was always my aim to return. I love the East Bay's beautiful landscape and built environment; its diverse, progressive, creative population; and its orientation toward smaller scale, public transit, and walking. Now retired, I am looking for volunteer opportunities. In recent months, I have helped distribute the Rockridge News, participated in Scenic Streets' volunteer landscaping of Highway 24

After Board and Land Use Committee vacancies remained unfilled at year's end, I applied to fill the remaining terms and was appointed to these positions in January.

From earlier years living here, I appreciate the important role that RCPC has played in maintaining Rockridge as a vibrant, enjoyable community. (One example: when our Mini-Lot Developments: The Underbelly of Planning Revisions?

by Robert Brokl

Our Maccall Street neighbors group lost the $1,352 appeal over a mini-lot subdivision, a vacant lot at 5919 Maccall (two blocks west of Shattuck at 59th Street). Two 1,452 sq. ft., two-story buildings – a project of the Wilson Family, developers of Market Hall – on the standard 4,140 sq. ft. lot where 5,000 sq. ft. would be required were approved at the Residential Appeal Committee January 11. Two of the three commissioners, Jonelyn Whales, a city of Richmond planner recently appointed by Mayor Jean Quan, and Blake Huntsman, a Dellums appointee, heard the appeal. Both peremptorily voted us down.

Apparently, the zoning we thought we had achieved during the recent rezoning is only advisory if a developer wants to build the maximum number of structures on a vacant lot, back, front or side yard. Conditional use permits and variances are being granted for these mini-lot projects. (We're assuming the project pending at 4812 Lawton in Temescal – www.savelawton.org – is also a mini-lot development.)

Testimony at the hearing by Zoning Manager Scott Miller and developers indicated condo financing is harder to come by, and mini-lot, multi-unit structures on standard parcels is necessary in a difficult development climate. Miller cited the “flexibility” and “marketability” these mini-lot developments afford developers. (Planning staff are paid primarily through developer fees and permits.) We actively participated in the lengthy citywide rezoning process, but “mini-lot developments,” which pre-empt zoning, were never even put on the table.

While nine different households contributed toward the appeal fee, and we had support from more, Commissioner Huntsman used the condescending term NIMBY (Not In My Backyard) to describe us.

The city of Oakland’s “A Guide to Mini-Lot Developments in the City of Oakland (Chapter 17.102.320)” states: “Mini-Lot Development is defined by Section 17.09 [Definitions] of the Oakland Planning Code as ‘a comprehensively designed development containing lots which do not meet the minimum size or other requirements applying to individual lots in the zone where it is located.’”

Mini-lot developments are allowed in all but a few areas of the hills — ranchettes along Skyline Boulevard, where the minimum lot size is four acres.

Rockridge, Temescal, and North Oakland are especially rich targets for such shoehorned projects because of keen developer interest in areas that are weathering the Great Recession better, and because the relatively restrictive RM-1 and RM-2 zoning we thought protected us apparently doesn't.

RCPC Land Use Committee

The RCPC Land Use Committee meets on the fourth Wednesday of the month at the Rockridge Branch Library, Upstairs Meeting Room, 7:30 p.m. Next meeting: February 22.

Land Use Update

by Stuart Flashman, RCPC Land Use Committee chair

January Meeting Notes:

College Avenue Safeway Shopping Center Project

College and Claremont Avenues
Peterson Vollman (pvollman@oaklandnet.com, phone 238-6167), the city planner handling the case, indicated that the administrative draft of the final EIR has just come back from the city's consultants. It's about 2,000 pages long, and, as he put it, there's a lot that will need to be reviewed, and perhaps modified, before it will be released to the public. His estimate is perhaps some time in March, or maybe later. At the moment, he is still of the opinion that it will not need to be recirculated for further public comment. No word as yet about whether there will be any further meetings of the Planning Commission's Design Review Committee on the project before it goes to the full commission.

Rockridge Shopping Center Rebuild Project

Broadway and Pleasant Valley
The Draft EIR for this project, which involves demolishing and rebuilding the shopping center while adding approximately 120,000 sq.ft. of additional retail, is, according to Oakland planner Daren Ranelletti (dranelletti@oaklandnet.com, phone 238-3663), still in process, and an administrative draft has not yet been received. Among other things, the city is still awaiting revised project plans promised by Safeway, the master tenant and project sponsor, in response to comments at last January's design review committee hearings.

The RCPC Land Use Committee, joined by John Gatewood of Urbanists for a Livable Temescal-Rockridge Area (ULTRA), discussed trying to identify a single community alternative for the project. Rather than try to redesign the project, however, the committee recommended a number of principles that should be addressed in the project's final design. The principles are intended to create a pedestrian and transit-friendly urban shopping area. They included:

- Safe, convenient, and pleasant pedestrian access to the Safeway store and other shopping from both Broadway and Pleasant Valley shopping center entrances;
- Extend the city street grid into the center so that extensions of Coronado and Gilbert Streets connect within the center and extend to the quarry pond and all parking structures;
- Replace most of the surface parking areas with structured parking so that the land is used efficiently and appropriately for an urban area;
- Activate the quarry pond frontage with restaurants or another activity center;

February Meeting Agenda

The next meeting of the RCPC Land Use Committee is Wednesday, February 22, 7:30 p.m. at the Rockridge Branch Library. Agenda topics will include updates on the Rockridge Shopping Center and College Avenue Safeway projects and possibly discussion of the City's proposed revisions to its off-street parking requirements. Please contact Stu Flashman (652-5373 or chair@rockridge.org) for a copy of the agenda. Land use committee meetings are generally open to the public.

- Better AC Transit access to the center, including a possible onsite station;
- Direct pedestrian access to shopping from Pleasant Valley;
- Better landscaping and sidewalk amenities on the Pleasant Valley frontage, in surface parking areas, and on the "shopping street;"
- Prominent pedestrian crossings (e.g., speed tables) across access roads on site;
- Provide space for a future phase to include housing.

These principles will be reviewed by the RCPC Board and other North Oakland community groups, and if accepted, could form the basis for discussions with Safeway.

FROG Plans 10th Anniversary Celebration and Marks Annual Earth Day: April 21

by Theresa Nelson

It was just over 10 years ago, in mid-October, 2001, that community volunteers finished building the play structures at Frog Park. Prior to 2001, it was a place of delapidated basketball courts under the freeway, partly fenced and overrun with weeds.

More than 1,300 volunteers from around the area came together for 10 days to work from dawn until after dark to build the custom-designed play structures.

Every bit of wood and Trex, every screw and nail, the mosaic turtle and wall, every painted wooden butterfly, flower or leaf, and all the fencing was built by community volunteers who gave their time and energy to make this park a reality.

More than 1,000 tools were lent for the Big Build, we offered childcare so parents could participate in the build, and we fed everyone lunch, dinner and snacks from a field kitchen set up in the park.

People took off from work to serve as captains for the entire build, working with groups of volunteers from throughout Oakland, as well as local corporations, garden clubs, UC Berkeley students, the Junior League, Oakland Firefighters, and many more.

The park has since become a central

A certified project manager, Carol has worked for Kaiser Permanente as a senior project manager and consultant, implementing their online medical records and other strategic initiatives.

Carol is also an avid gardener. She understands how important parks are, and the impact they have on our quality of life and community.

She will lead the process to discuss possible enhancements to Frog Park in 2012, and the completion of renovation plans for the DMV creekside area.

ROCKRIDGE LIBRARY SEEKS MONEY, REBUFFS VOLUNTEERS

EDITOR:

I am writing in response to the articles in the last two issues of The Rockridge News regarding the Rockridge Branch Library. The December article called for donations to the library, and the January article speaks about the New Teen Zone, and finishes with another appeal for more money.

I find it surprising that the very same library that will not accept volunteers is again asking the community to write checks. As I value the contribution the library makes to our neighborhood, and as I am aware of their struggle to provide services during a budget shortfall, I attempted to volunteer at the library but was told that they no longer accept volunteers.

If the library is not willing to accept support from the community, whether it is in the form of time, energy, or initiative, I do not see why they deserve to receive our charitable dollars instead.

Furthermore, there are many people who would love to contribute to the library but cannot afford to give money. Volunteers are not a burden. They are an invaluable resource, and many non-profits should be so lucky as to have such support. Shame on the Rockridge Library for overlooking a resource more precious than money: passion.

— Elizabeth James

ROCKRIDGE BRANCH HEAD RESPONDS RE VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES

EDITOR:

In response to concerns regarding the Rockridge Branch Library's moratorium on accepting new volunteers, I'd like to first emphasize how grateful we are to members of the public who generously offer their time to help at the library. Regrettably, due to severe staffing cuts, branch staff members are not presently able to train and supervise new volunteers.

However, exciting volunteer opportunities are offered by the Oakland Public Library system. The library will be hosting Volunteer Information Sessions for members of the public, as follows:

- MARCH 15 (Thursday) at the Main Library, beginning at 6:30 p.m.
- MARCH 17 (Saturday) at Rockridge Library, beginning at 10:15 a.m.

Approximately 40 people attended the library's pilot Volunteer Information Sessions in September. Staff representing Second Start Literacy Program, Books for Wider Horizons (a volunteer storyreading program), Main Library Information Desk and Main Library Computer Lab each hosted a table in job fair style with information about their volunteer program. The volunteer coordinator for Public Works' "Adopt a Spot" gardening/beautification program and Friends of the Oakland Public Library/Bookmark Bookstore volunteers also participated, giving participants a wide range of opportunities to explore.

For more information about the upcoming sessions, contact Winifred Walters at 510/238-6932 or email wwalters@oaklandlibrary.org.

And, again, a heartfelt Thank You! to our wonderful patrons who have offered help and support to the library during difficult times. We truly appreciate you!

— Pat Lichter, Manager, Rockridge Branch, Oakland Public Library, 597-5017

Eyes on Rockridge

When Rockridge Was 'Little Italy'

by Judith Doner Berne

The largest piece of art on the walls of Ben and Antonietta Tamburrino's 1907 Rockridge bungalow is a color photograph of the hill town in Italy where they were born.

And some of their most cherished memories date back to a time when the section of Rockridge closest to Temescal was known as "Little Italy."

It wasn't just that Italian immigrants populated their neighborhood along streets like Shafter, Cavour, Desmond and Kales, they explained, but they also worked in and owned grocery stores, shops and restaurants, particularly along Telegraph Avenue.

Tamburrino, 82, is a retired carpenter. His dad, Domiano, who immigrated to the United States in 1921, had four different barbershops along College Avenue over the years.

Three of the shops were across from or close to what is now Zachary's Pizza. His last barber shop is the present-day Rockridge Barbers, owned since 1986 by Marty Hatton and located near Hudson Bay Cafe. "Some of the furniture [the chairs that customers sit on to wait their turn] was my dad's," Ben says.

Domiano returned to Italy to marry and start a family, but they didn't join him in the United States until after World War II. Ben, then 15, spent his teen-age years in their house on Shafter at a time when the Sacramento-Northern Railroad ran down the middle of the street.

It was the first of the three Craftsman bungalows that have been his homes over 66 years in Rockridge.

"My dad found an area that was full of Italians," which made easing into American life and culture a little easier, Ben says.

"We could live within ourselves – if that's what we chose to do," says Antonietta, whom he met and married when he went back to his hometown, between Rome and Naples, for a visit.

In 1961, Ben brought his 19-year-old bride with him to Rockridge. They stayed with his family, who had moved to a bungalow on Harwood, until they bought their own home a few blocks away where they have lived for the last 48 years.

"In the '60s, it was a blue-collar neighborhood," Antonietta says. "People were very friendly. My sister-in-law lived across the street. You didn't always have to lock your doors."

Along with their Italian friends and neighbors, they sent their three children to Catholic schools although Ben is proud of graduating from Oakland Technical High School. They attended St. Theresa Catholic Church.

Many Italians gathered at their own social clubs, such as the Columbo Club on Claremont at 55th Street, he says. The Tower Theater, at Telegraph and 51st, showed Italian films.

Ben and Antonietta remember when College Avenue looked very different: the Safeway grocery was in the space now occupied by the Levant Rug Company; the Cactus Tacqueria was the Chimes market; another market, Louie's, was at Chabot; and the Chimes Drug Store had a soda fountain.

They also remember when College Avenue fell on hard times in the '70s, and many stores were simply boarded up.

Ben misses the street cars and trains that once provided Rockridge's public transportation, while recognizing that access to BART and the freeway has helped revitalize the area.

He is proud that he helped build the columns for the SR-24 freeway, while acknowledging that, "I hated all the noise and dust and to see all the homes that were destroyed. Some people had their houses transported to new streets."

When fire swept the Oakland hills above them in 1991, "We filled up two cars with all our pictures and documents," Antonietta says. "I was up all night with the hose. The firemen (successfully) blocked our street."

Once their children were in school, she worked part-time at Maria's, a cheese-cake factory which used to be on Broadway across from Oakland Tech. Most recently, she was a cook at Alta Bates Hospital in Berkeley, retiring after 20 years. "I just loved that job," she said. "I cried when I left."

"You know, (Chez Panisse restaurateur) Alice Waters gets credit for a new kind of cooking," Ben says, using only locally, organically and sustainably grown ingredients. "But the Italians were doing it before Alice Waters."

As proof, Antonietta points out her backyard vegetable garden which she supplements at Berkeley Bowl. She also grows orchids alongside her garage.

"When I first came here, I walked Oakland from one end to the other and I loved it," Ben says. And he and Antonietta still walk almost daily – north to Elmwood, south to the Rockridge Shopping Center.

This day, it was through Mountain View Cemetery. "It's so beautiful and there are a lot of Italian names," she says.

Much as they would love it, they don't anticipate that their children and three grandchildren, who all live in the Bay Area, will add to the family's Rockridge roots.

"Who wouldn't want to live in Rockridge?" Antonietta said. "But it's just too expensive."

Too Pooped to Pop

Each year, I look forward to attending the annual Fancy Food show sponsored by the Specialty Food Association at the Moscone Convention Center in San Francisco. Nearly a thousand exhibitors cover the entire convention center floor, hawking their products to the likes of the Pasta Shops, Whole Foods, Berkeley Bowls and gourmet markets of the country. Exhibitors lavish tastes and product samples to potential customers. It is a three-day gastronomic experience – gluttony on steroids.

In addition to snacking my way through the exhibits, I look for new and “in” food trends. Several years ago it was pasta, the following year tea took home the prize and last year salt was everywhere. This year’s “in” food is... drum roll please ... POPCORN and popcorn creations.

Who would believe? A very close second: jams, jellies, and marmalade seemed to be everywhere.

A Bit of History

Popcorn predates eating corn kernels. Pre-Columbian corn kernels were too hard to chew. Mesoamericans found that by heating the kernel, pressure builds up in the form of steam that pops the outer kernel skin. Recent evidence has unearthed ancient popcorn in a 6,000 year-old Peruvian archeological site. By 1840, popping corn was the fad in America. Young boys sold popcorn at train stations and on street corners. Popcorn recipes began to appear in early 19th century cookbooks. Many of these recipes gave rise to cold breakfast cereal and popcorn candies. An iconic figure in American small towns and big cities is the red popcorn wagon invented by Charles Cretors in 1885. By 1900, nearly every street corner had a popcorn wagon. By the late 19th century, popcorn was America’s first – and favorite – snack food. As movie theaters grew, so did the consumption of popcorn. To this day, popcorn is the most popular movie snack.

In 1893, at the Columbian Exposition in Chicago, German immigrant brothers Frederick and Louis Rueckheim sold a confection of popcorn, peanuts and molasses. The brothers named it Cracker Jack and it was an instant hit. By 1909, Cracker Jack was immortalized in the national pastime song “Take Me Out to the Ballgame” with the lilting line, “buy me some peanuts and Cracker Jack....”

By 1913, Cracker Jack was the world’s largest selling snack food. In 1912, a small toy was placed in every box. The little sailor-boy and his dog Bingo became the icons of American snack food. Gourmet versions of Cracker Jack dominated this year’s Fancy Food Show.

Now, here’s how you can make your own “gourmet” popcorn:

Caramel Popcorn (10 servings)

2-1/2 quarts of popped popcorn
1/2 cup butter
1 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup corn syrup
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract

Preheat oven 250 degrees, place popcorn in a large bowl
In a medium saucepan over medium heat, melt butter.
Stir in sugar, corn syrup, and salt. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly.
Boil without stirring 4 minutes.
Remove from heat, stir in baking soda and vanilla.
Pour in a thin stream over popcorn, stirring to coat.
Place in large shallow baking dish.
Bake for 1 hour, stirring every 15 minutes.
Remove from oven, let cool and break into bite-size pieces.

ONKLAND TECH Auction This Is IT! Tech Annual Fundraising Auction: March

Wonderful food and entertainment and the chance to bid on an enticing array of auction items await you at “This is It!,” Oakland Technical High School’s 2012 Auction, the school’s main fundraising event. Sponsored by the school’s Parent Teacher Student Association (PTSA), the auction provides crucial support for the school, hailed in a front page Oakland Tribune article as “Oakland’s new ‘it’ school.”

Funds raised by the auction provide necessary support to all areas of the school and its students: from classroom needs to infrastructure materials; from athletics to music; from lab supplies to technology, and more. This year, we hope to raise over $52,000 and surpass last year’s total.

by Jennifer James Alper, Chabot parent

The Chabot Elementary community is already hard at work on the school’s largest and most sensational fundraiser of the year – our annual spring auction. “Casino Royale,” this year’s event, is sure to be a crowd pleaser, with an amazing collection of items and unique experiences available for bidding, fabulous food, signature cocktails, music, dancing – and for the first time, a live casino! Are you a high roller? Get in on the action and come try your hand at blackjack, roulette and other casino favorites, while raising funds for Chabot. On Saturday, March 10, at 5:30 p.m., we return to the historic Scottish Rite Temple, 1547 Lake-

The money raised through the auction allows the PTA to fund a wide range of enrichment programs that enhance the core curriculum at Chabot, including art, garden, library, media lab, music, science and Spanish. Through the collective Raffle tickets for keys to wine cellars sold like hotcakes. Children’s artwork spurred a bidding war rivaling Christie’s. A parent swore off buying a second car after winning a donated bike at a bidding table.

These were some of the highlights of Peralta Elementary School’s auction last year. This year’s auction on March 3, from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m., at the Uptown Body and Fender building at 401 26th Street in downtown Oakland, is slated to be another great party with dinner, drinks, a DJ spinning

Painter Michael Manente and his son John painted "The Carpenter" on the blank back wall of a downtown office building. John Manente recorded the event for You Tube at <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=MfRCQrXSVY>

Do you have a "Photo Finish" of an Oakland scene you'd like to submit to The Rockridge News? Send your digital files – color or B&W – to the newsletter c/o editor_rn@mindspring.com. E-mail that address if you have a photo printed on paper.

Say what you will about Oakland, you can always count on an encounter with beauty, nuttiness, whimsy or despair whenever you are out and about.

Say what you want about Oakland and you can expect a list as long as your arm.

Say what you like about Oakland and you have only to look around to see wonderful things on any corner.

Seeking a downtown parking spot the other day, a Rockridge driver turned left onto 17th Street after leaving the freeway, turned right at San Pablo Avenue, then right again on 16th Street, and wow!, found the stunning mural at left on the back of the Haley Law Offices building, an evident tribute to the Oakland Worker.

From a phone call to the artist, who had left his name at the bottom of his work, the driver learned that Oakland billboard painter and muralist Michael Manente of Masterpiece Sign Painting and his son John had painted the first of a series of "People of Oakland" portraits on the erstwhile blank back wall of the Haley building. Lawyer Haley is a friend and gave his blessing to the project. The carpenter is also a friend of Manente's, and posed for the preliminary sketches.

"I was a billboard painter for 20 years, and I have painted murals in San Francisco and Oakland over the years," Manente said, "many in West Oakland, some for San Francisco merchants, and some on Fisherman's Wharf." — Don Kinkead

by Jennifer James Alper, FORL boardmember

The Rockridge Library is clearly a beloved and valued institution in our neighborhood. Once again, the Friends of the Rockridge Library (FORL) are extremely grateful for the continued support the community has shown for our local branch.

Donations to FORL provide the vital funding that bridges the budget gaps faced by many of the popular programs and services we need in our library. FORL funds underwrite a variety of the children and teen programs, as well as popular periodicals, books and continued maintenance for our library facilities. We thank all of our “friends” for their generous donations and support.

This year, FORL will be working closely with the Rockridge library staff, as well as the larger Oakland Public Library system, to find ways to improve the library experience for patrons.

FORL has also taken steps to register as an independent non-profit corporation and expects our new status to be approved shortly. Originally founded in 1996 as a sub-committee of the Rockridge Community Planning Council (RCPC), FORL will now operate as a separate non-profit, with the sole focus of supporting the Rockridge branch. The FORL board has enjoyed working with RCPC on a variety of community projects over the years, and appreciates the guidance they have provided to us. We will continue our efforts to best serve the neighborhood and residents through our work with the Rockridge Library.

Keep up with FORL’s activities on behalf of the Rockridge branch at our website (www.friendsofrockridgelibrary.org); we look forward to seeing you at the library.

Peralta Yard Sale Storage Space

was split between Peralta and Claremont. It is our hope we can continue this wonderful event that brings neighbors and school communities together.

Many things go into making this sale a continued success: dedicated workers; generous donations by community members; shoppers from all over the East Bay; and pre-sale access to storage space for donated items.

Unfortunately, this year’s sale is threatened because we are losing our storage space. Wonderful neighbors who have so generously let us use their basement for the past three years are moving next month and we will lose the use of this space for pre-sale storage of donated items.

Having adequate pre-sale storage allows us to collect, sort, organize and price all donations prior to the day of the yard sale. This pre-sale organization is crucial for efficient set up, sales and tear down/clean up. Trying to do it all the morning of the sale is just too difficult.

If you have space you could donate to us, we would greatly appreciate it. Ideally, it would be a ground floor space, located in our neighborhood. We would be using it for about a month. All the stored items would be gone by 9 a.m. April 29.

All leads are appreciated. Send suggestions and offers to Heather Grillmeyer at grillmeyer@sbcglobal.net.

BRT Meeting Ignores Concerns

Included in this process are the following steps:

- On or about February 3, the resubmitted FEIS will be released to the public.
- Public meetings for input will be held in March (details at end of article).
- In April, the two city councils will vote on the BRT project.
- In August, the Federal Transit Administration, which oversees and finances the project, will issue a Record of Decision.

If approved, construction of the BRT project will begin in April, 2014, to be completed two years later.

During the meeting, AC Transit staff representatives Tina Spencer and Jim Cunradi

At the April 19 RCPC Town Hall meeting, candidates will explain to the audience their interest in serving on the board, and voting will take place. Neighbors unable to attend the April 19 meeting may vote at the Rockridge Branch Library on Saturday, April 21. Further details will be published in the April issue of The Rockridge News.

daughter was small, we sometimes took her to the location of today's FROG Park; but the setting was far less inviting then, and we often ended up driving to Tilden or smaller Berkeley parks. Determined area residents, with RCPC support, made FROG Park possible.) That role continues as Rockridge faces Safeway expansion plans on both ends of the neighborhood, along with other current issues.

Besides my legal work, I have a Master's in planning, spent several years in Sacramento as a legislative analyst, and worked for Leo McCarthy through his first term as Lieutenant Governor. This background, focused on issue analysis, writing, and dispute resolution, along with my ability to commit significant time, will help me play a useful part in RCPC's work in the months ahead.

announced two possible routes for the BRT:

- One would begin on Telegraph Avenue at the Berkeley border on its way to San Leandro, and therefore would include the Temescal District.
- The other possible route would go from downtown Oakland to San Leandro, and therefore would exclude the Temescal District.

Tina Spencer saw the March public input meetings as a way to include the public in the policy-making process by providing an opportunity for people to make suggestions about such things as bus color, shelters, and lighting.

Community Concerns Not Mentioned

No mention was made of the deeper community concerns that Temescal and Rockridge residents have, such as traffic congestion and loss of parking; the impact on an existing vibrant local merchant economy that has taken years to build; placement of bus stops two blocks apart so that riders (including most disabled) can get local errands and business done in a timely and convenient manner; bicycle lanes; and a clear definition of pollution.

Bring your input and concerns to the District/public impact meeting Wednesday, March 7, 6-8 p.m., at Faith Presbyterian Church, 430 49th Street.

Chabot Auction

generosity of parents and local businesses, the PTA raised over $175,000 at our 2011 auction, a fantastic showing! Our goal is to match or surpass that benchmark, and we need support to reach it.

As in years past, the auction has two phases:

We kick off with the online auction of teacher/staff donations, gift certificates and other wonderful items like travel experiences, clothing and jewelry. The online auction runs from Wednesday, February 29 through Thursday, March 8. Link to the Casino Royale event featured at www.chabotelementary.org and view the auction catalog as it's being built, donate an auction item or service, sponsor Chabot or donate money, and buy tickets to the event.

Casino Royale, the gala live auction and silent auction will feature parent-hosted parties, classroom art projects and gift baskets, along with one-of-a kind items and experiences. Items to be auctioned off at the gala include an electric guitar signed by the Rolling Stones; a framed photo signed by all six James Bond actors; a framed photo signed by the cast of Star Wars; and a two-night stay at a Napa bed and breakfast with wine tasting. Festivities will continue well into the evening hours, so be sure to wear your dancing shoes.

Chabot relies on the generosity of its school and local communities to make our annual auction a success. Local businesses are encouraged to sponsor our event, as well as donate goods, services and gift certificates. It's a targeted and effective way to reach the broader Chabot community while supporting our school. Can't attend the live event? Take part in the online auction. Otherwise, join us March 10 to celebrate our fantastic school community. We'll wager that it will be a wonderful night. More information at www.chabotelementary.org.

disks and tables chockfull of certificates to local restaurants, as well as items and services donated by local merchants. Tickets can be purchased for $20 in advance or $25 at the door.

The entire community is invited to this party as well to the school's online auction, which runs February 20-27. It is a great way to support the school and discover a treasure trove of deals and coveted items. To donate an item or service to the auction, contact Lisa Beyer at 510/384-8724. Donation deadline is February 11.

Peralta's auction supports important programs at the school, which are in jeopardy amid the financial strain of years of budget cuts. Thanks to the community support for fundraisers like the auction, Peralta continues to offer art, music, physical education and other services once considered part of every kid's school day.

"All these things we want at our school," said Star Lightner, chair of Peralta's parent teacher group. "Now, if we want kids to have a truly rich, diverse learning environment, we have to fund it."

To meet the challenge, the community has successfully ramped up the auction, the school's second biggest fundraiser. Since 2009, the auction has more than doubled its revenue, bringing in $55,000 last year.

There is a sense of urgency about funding to ensure that Peralta, honored last year with a U.S. Department of Education National Blue Ribbon School award, can maintain its standard of excellence.

Report: NCPC

The College Preparatory School, 6100 Broadway, will be a special one as well: Margaret Wahlberg and Christine Acker of WhistleSTOP will donate the balance of their nonprofit funds to the Greater Rockridge NCPC as they retire their WhistleSTOP program. WhistleSTOP raised money to purchase and resell keychain whistles as a crime prevention tool. Because the city no longer funds the NCPCs, composed of citizen volunteers who offer their time, office supplies, and other resources, WhistleSTOP's $441 donation to your Greater Rockridge NCPC will help continue crime prevention and awareness in Rockridge.

Plan to attend the February meeting to show your appreciation to Christine Acker and Margaret Wahlberg for their WhistleSTOP work and the donation to the Greater Rockridge NCPC.

Purchasing surveillance cameras: Details about the cameras, how they work, prices and the 30 percent community discount (six camera minimum) will be in the NCPC minutes. To help people get the discount, NCPC has started a list of names of those interested so we may introduce people to each other to meet the purchase minimum. If you need one or two "order buddies," e-mail chair@rockridgencpc.com, noting how many cameras you are interested in purchasing.

Staff Changes at Rockridge Branch Library: Temporary? No Guarantees

Branch Manager Pat Lichter and Storytelling Librarian Gay Ducey are being transferred to other branches. Pat is going to be branch manager at the new 81st Avenue Branch, while Gay will be branch manager at the Dimond Branch for six months. We hope their assignments are temporary and that they will return to Rockridge, but there are no guarantees.

The library system has had a hiring freeze in place for a long time. These moves are therefore forced by a promotion and a couple of people going on leave, creating a domino effect.

City budget cuts are also causing a lot of furlough days at the library, which many patrons only discover by accident when they go on a day that the library would normally be open.
