Shell Station at College and Claremont Removed — But What's Next?

Excavator John Speelman does some shovel work while digging out the Shell station gas tanks. Next, hazardous materials workers will scrub the tank interiors before final removal. What's planned for the site? The Planning Department says nothing is on file. County Assessor records show the property owner is Montrose Investment Co., Houston, TX. A commercial/residential building is rumored. E-mail editor_rn@mindspring.com with your thoughts.

Planning begins for the 2013 Rockridge Kitchen Tour. See page 2 for details and contacts.

A Break in the Crime Clouds?

If you follow any of the local online community forums, you might feel that if you have not been held up, burgled, or beat down on the streets of Rockridge, you soon will be. Postings such as: Two auto break-ins in the last three hours on College; Just wanted to report our house was broken into; The man was shot in the leg and then staggered back into [a business]; are enough to give you whiplash from watching your back so closely.

But then, this, e-mailed to The Rockridge News: "I was visiting with a friend in Rockridge last week and I lost my wallet. Imagine my delighted surprise when it arrived in the mail this morning with everything — cash, bank card, driver's license, Trader Joe's gift card, and library card all still there. Some honest person anonymously took the trouble to mail this with no return address at their own expense."

The bad and the good. The ugly may soon be receding if the expectations we hold for the Highway Patrol, the Alameda County Sheriff's officers, and Commissioner Bratton pan out. At least until the PD is staffed again.

On page 2, a Rockridge resident writes to our new City Councilmember of her concerns and hopes about crime and public safety. —Ed.

RCPC Sets April Elections, Appoints a Board Member

The recent appointment of Benvenue Avenue resident Zabrae Valentine to the RCPC board leaves the board with two vacancies to be filled by election. The Rockridge Community Planning Council (RCPC) will hold its annual election for membership on the board of directors

21 AGENDA February 2013 RCPC Town Hall Meeting

- 1. Discussion: Caldecott settlement-funded intersection improvements
- 2. Rockridge Shopping Center draft EIR has been issued. Discussion, analysis and response

Topic 1: The city of Oakland presents preliminary designs of two Caldecott Settlement Agreement-funded projects:

- Broadway/Keith Intersection Improvements
- Broadway/Brookside/SR 24 On-ramp Intersection Improvements

Funded via the $8 million settlement agreement with Caltrans over the Caldecott Tunnel Fourth Bore, these two projects are being designed together based on comments the community provided in public meetings last year. At the Town Hall meeting, participants will hear a brief overview of the process that led to this

Crime in Oakland: 'Dear Councilmember Kalb'

A Rockridge Resident Shares Her Concerns and Hopes

Dear Councilmember Kalb:

I am glad to see that you are making public safety and crime prevention a top priority. Having lived in Rockridge since 1985 – when some of College Avenue was still boarded up, there was a lot of crime and graffiti and only a few upscale restaurants or shops – I know well how neighborhoods, and even cities, can change over time because of public safety, or the lack of it. A few thoughts:

First, Oakland's leadership on this issue for several years has been far less than adequate, closer to abysmal. For years, the Council has been divided and ineffective with Mayors who did almost nothing, while our police force shrank, crime soared and children and adults died on our streets. Almost every time Chief Jordan quotes a statistic (90 percent of crimes related to gang or 100 blocks accounting for most crime) it's quickly disavowed by police staff; this cannot inspire confidence. Our current Mayor, who has time and time again demonstrated by actions her desire to limit police effectiveness as a Councilmember and as Mayor, consistently votes to reduce police staffing, repel innovation and reforms, and panders to anti-police groups.

Second, it's good to see that you support hiring William Bratton, and are withstanding what is an onslaught from the anti-police groups in Oakland. Sadly, they have become so intimidating that those who want to support effective, community-based policing (like me and many others I know) no longer feel comfortable speaking up at

City Council meetings. When longtime community activists are verbally abused by anti-police forces at meetings, you may only hear one point of view.

Third, you've probably been monitoring the various Yahoo Groups on crime in Oakland. More and more I see people posting that others should contact you about public safety. I hope that you are indeed hearing from these folks, and I hope you are able to develop some ways that individuals and neighborhood groups can take action. It seems that the word is truly out that Oakland is an easy touch for burglars and robbers because of the lack of police coverage. For those of us who have a good block organization, are registered with neighborhood watch, have alarms and good locks and do all the things we've been told to do, the usual OPD "organize your block and get a good lock" just sounds ridiculous. When you do all the "right" crime prevention actions and people are robbed in front of your house and homes are broken into during the daytime when someone is obviously at home, the old ways clearly don't work and it's time to make some changes. This is far from the best we can do, and is no longer even adequate.

Finally, while for years the Council was divided in its actions about public safety, this is a new Council, and can organize to counter Mayor Quan's inconsistency and ineffectiveness on this issue. I hope that some of the issues that divided the Council in the past are indeed past, and that perhaps you and some of the other newer members are ready to form coalitions to take action.

Sincerely,
Theresa Nelson

2013 Rockridge Kitchen Tour Planning at Hand

This fall marks the coming of the tenth biennial Rockridge Kitchen Tour.

First held in 1995, the tour is the primary fundraising event of the Rockridge Community Planning Council (RCPC), and showcases remarkably renovated, restored or remodeled Rockridge residential kitchens that homeowners open for a day of viewing by tour guests.

As returning tour chair, Rockridge resident Natalie Mehta will supervise the selection of nine kitchens homeowners offer for viewing, and coordinate a small army of volunteer docents and writers and a host of advertisers, food providers and tour guests.

Do you know of a kitchen that should be on the tour? Contact Natalie at natalie.mehta@yahoo.com or call 415/279-5148.

Land Use Update

by Stuart Flashman, RCPC Land Use Committee chair

■ Rockridge Montessori School Expansion Project 5610 Broadway

This project would expand the current school such that it might eventually house up to 200 students. It requires a minor conditional use permit for a school in a residential zone. RCPC expressed concerns about its traffic and other impacts. The use permit was approved administratively, and neighbors of the project appealed to the Planning Commission. In November, with a bare quorum present, the Commission preliminarily voted 3-1 to grant the appeal and deny the use permit. The matter is scheduled to come back to the Commission for formal findings. In the meantime, the neighbors and the school are attempting to reach a compromise agreement, which RCPC would encourage.

■ College Preparatory School Expansion Project 6100 Broadway

The project would expand this private high school from 340 (approved in 2009) to 375 students. The minor conditional use permit (school in a residential zone) was administratively approved, and the neighbors appealed. The Land Use Committee heard from both sides at its January meeting and decided to recommend a compromise to the RCPC board: approve expansion to 360, not 375, students; place a penalty on exceeding that enrollment cap; require the school to continue its traffic and parking demand management program; and require the school to improve how it deals with noise “leakage” into the neighborhood. The board will take the matter up at its February meeting. An appeal hearing before the Planning Commission has not yet been scheduled.

■ Draft Environmental Impact Report Issued for Rockridge Shopping Center Rebuild/Expansion at Broadway & Pleasant Valley Road

The long-awaited Draft Environmental Impact Report (DEIR) for Safeway’s proposed rebuild/expansion of the Rockridge Shopping Center was released by the city on December 26 for public review and comment.

The DEIR will be discussed and analyzed at the RCPC Town Hall meeting, February 21, at the Rockridge Library. See Agenda, page 1, for new meeting start time.

Comments will be accepted for 60 days, until February 25. Free copies of the EIR are available from the Department of Planning, Building, and Community Preservation,

The document can also be downloaded as a pdf file from the city’s website at <http://www2.oaklandnet.com/Government/o/PBN/OurServices/Application/DOWD009157>. Comments can be sent to the planner handling the project, Darin Ranelletti, via e-mail to DRanelletti@oaklandnet.com or via U.S. mail at the address shown above.

In addition to a number of impacts that can be dealt with by mitigation, the DEIR identifies several significant and unavoidable traffic impacts, notably impacts at the Broadway/Pleasant Valley intersection and at the Pleasant Valley/Howe Street intersection. Take a stand – or a bicycle seat – for public education; help raise funds for enrichment programs in Oakland schools

Join us Saturday, May 11, for the fifth annual bike ride from Oakland to the State Capitol to support public education and raise essential funds for Oakland schools.

Last year, more than 150 students, teachers, parents and community members pedaled to Sacramento to protest the massive cuts in education funding. We raised awareness of the crisis in our schools and the need for public support for the passage of Proposition 30. But after years of disinvestment, we must demonstrate to Sacramento that Prop 30 is only the beginning; more funding, resources and support are required. We once had the best schools in the nation. Working together, we can proudly restore public education in California.

To do this, we need your support. Whether you plan to ride or not, you can help register 200 riders by sponsoring a rider (one or more), making a business or corporate donation or volunteering to help with the ride.

Our goal is to raise $80,000. Every dollar raised is shared equally by Emerson Elementary School, Claremont Middle School, Oakland Technical High School, and Oakland International High School.

Choose a fully supported 45-, 65-, or 100-mile ride. We provide SAG wagon support, rest stops, lunch, and bus transportation home from Sacramento and to the starting lines for the 45- and 65-mile rides (which are in Vacaville and Suisun). As in previous years, everyone rides to the State Capitol steps for our call to action and rally for education.

For more information, to register to ride, or to make a donation, go to: <http://rideforareason.dojiggy.com> or contact Mike Napolitano at 510/459-4342 or e-mail mikenapolitano5@gmail.com.

Claremont Middle School Sets Centennial Celebration

‘This School Has Been Here Since 1913’

‘This school has been here since 1913.’ Perhaps you have noticed this statement painted on the side of Claremont Middle School and thought to yourself, “One hundred years. Wow! They should really have some sort of celebration to mark the occasion of the 100th anniversary.” And, that’s the plan.

Note the date: June 1, 2013. All alumni, neighbors, current and former staff, students, families, and friends are invited to a centennial celebration of Claremont Middle School. More details to come as they develop.

Alumni are urged to contact Michelle Bilensky of the Claremont PTA at mdb.pta.oakland@gmail.com or Claremont PTA, 5750 College Avenue, Oakland CA 94618.

Chabot Elementary Spring Auction Gets into Full Swing

Exciting Items and Unique Experiences Up for Bid

by Jennifer James Alper, Chabot parent

The Chabot Elementary community is readying our biggest event of the year – the Gala spring auction, a school-wide effort that is the Chabot PTA’s biggest and most important fundraiser. We are focused on meeting (or beating!) our $150,000 goal so we can continue to support our dynamic enrichment programs — music, science, art, media, library, gardening, P.E. and Spanish — and ensure that they thrive.

We’ve been thrilled with the community support we’ve received this year – including generous donations from parents, teachers, relatives and our neighborhood merchants.

The Online Auction, going “live” February 27 through March 7, features 350-400 items, including gift certificates to local restaurants, grocery stores, retailers and services; professional services, including photography sessions and architectural consultations; tickets to museums, movies, the theater and other cultural happenings; passes to fitness and dance classes; seats at many local sporting events, including Cal Football, the Oakland A’s and San Francisco Giants; and more.

At our silent and live auctions at the March 9 Gala, we will auction off a range of exciting experiences, including individual tickets to a party for 50 at Rockridge’s own Toast; a private tour of Pixar Studios; getaways to Carmel, Catalina, Portland, or Mexico; Club Level seats at a San Francisco Giants game, and more!

Chabot Elementary is especially grateful to our early sponsors who demonstrated their commitment with generous financial donations: the Grubb Company, our lead sponsor; MPR Financial; Marvin Gardens Real Estate; Red Oak Realty; Bank of Commerce Mortgage; Adventure Time Extended Day Care; Hot Studio; and Amato Architecture.

Visit the Chabot web site at <http://www.chabotelementary.org/calendar/auction> for the latest information, links to the online auction, and to buy tickets to the Gala event March 9 at the Scottish Rite Center, 1547 Lakeside Drive, across from Lake Merritt..

Join the Auction Excitement at Fiesta de Peralta Two Auctions, Food, a DJ: School Support Made Fun and Easy

by Michelle Quinn, Peralta parent

Peralta Elementary School's auction this year is on Saturday, March 2 and promises to be a night of great food and exciting things to bid on including a week in a beautiful apartment in Buenos Aires as well as an apartment in Barcelona.

The event is at Oakland's Uptown Body and Fender, 401-26th Street between Broadway and Telegraph Avenue. Tickets can be purchased for $20 in advance or $25 at the door. The theme is Fiesta de Peralta.

The school's nearly 300 students rely on proceeds from the auction to support what has become to be viewed as "extras" in public education – arts, music, physical education and diversity training, among many other things.

The community is invited to both the online auction and the live event. (See box for auction address.) The online auction, which features more than 300 items available only online, runs from February 18 to February 25. Among the many items to bid on are restaurant and spa gift certificates, sporting events, fun camps, as well as products and services donated by local merchants.

The big event is the auction night itself, which begins at 5 p.m. Early birds will be offered a free drink until 5:30. The main dish will be paella, served up by former Chez Panisse chef Brian Espinoza. La Farine, the sumptuous Rockridge bakery, is an auction sponsor with a $500 donation to the event. A live D.J. will be at work to keep the place rocking.

The parents and teachers of Peralta School thank you for your generous support of the school over the years.

There is Still Time for Donations

The auction committee is taking donations until February 13. To bid in the online auction, go to : <http://auctions.readysetauction.com/peraltaelementarysch/>. More information: e-mail the Peralta Auction Committee at peralta.auction@gmail.com.

This Is It! Oakland Tech High School Auction

Wonderful food and entertainment and the chance to bid on an enticing array of auction items await you at "This is It!" Oakland Technical High School's 2013 Auction, the school's main fundraising event.

Sponsored by the school's Parent Teacher Student Association (PTSA), the auction raises crucial funds that provide support to all areas of the school and its students: from classroom needs to infrastructure materials; from athletics to music; from lab supplies to technology, and more.

This year, we hope to raise over $65,000 and surpass last year's total. We encourage everyone to participate in whatever way appeals to you. For example, local businesses and community members can sponsor the event, donate merchandise and services or purchase a catalog ad.

The entire Rockridge community is invited to the party and to participate in Tech's online auction this March. Plan now to attend this exciting event on Saturday, March 16, from 6 - 10:30 p.m., at the Uptown Body and Fender building, 401-26th Street, between Broadway and Telegraph Avenue.

Tickets are $25 per person until February 28, and $35 afterwards. For more information, to purchase advance tickets, or to donate an item, contact auctiondonation@oaklandtech.com or visit: www.oaklandtech.com/ptsa/auction-2013/.

'Huge' College Prep Book Fair

by College Prep staff

The 19th Annual College Preparatory School Book Fair will be held Saturday, March 2, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Sunday, March 3, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., with a bargain bag sale Sunday, 12 noon to 1 p.m. This huge used book sale is held in Buttner Auditorum on the College Prep campus, 6100 Broadway. There is abundant free parking. A bonus event during the Saturday sale will be a yard sale and car wash ($10 for exterior and $10 for interior) to benefit the school's intraterm travel programs.

The Book Fair is a not-to-be-missed event for book lovers. Thousands of volumes for all ages are offered at ultra bargain prices: $1-2 for paperback, $3 for hardcover, with a few special or oversized books priced slightly higher. CDs, DVDs and audio books will also be available. Books are sorted by category and the sale includes many nearly new and recent works in superb condition as well as vintage and hidden treasures.

Funds from the sale are used for student financial aid and the school's Faculty Wish List. Donations are tax deductible. Books not sold are donated to local charities.

Donations of books, textbooks, CDs, and DVDs in good condition will be accepted through February 28. All contributions are welcome, but especially sought are current adult fiction, children's and teen books, art and cook books, and books on history and current affairs.

Donations may be left in the collection bins under the overhang of the building to the left as you enter the parking lot. Bins marked "Book Fair" are near the far end of the building, next to a large flight of stairs. Tax donation forms are available at the bins. Donations may be left any time, but it is advisable to avoid peak traffic periods between 7:45 and 8:15 a.m., and 3:05 and 3:45 p.m., Monday through Friday. Questions? Contact bookfair@college-prep.org.

SHROVE TUESDAY

'Pancake Tuesday' Fun at College Avenue Presbyterian Church

by Monte McClain, Pastor

Celebrate Pancake Tuesday, aka Mardi Gras, with neighbors and friends Tuesday, February 12 from 6-7 p.m. at College Avenue Presbyterian Church, 5951 College Avenue.

We'll be serving a free pancake dinner in our gym, and leading traditional Pancake Tuesday games and family fun. Bring your skillet for a pancake relay race, a Shrove Tuesday custom dating back to the English Middle Ages. Our activities are planned for all ages from small children to the young at heart!

We'll also have information about ways to get involved in community service in and around Rockridge. Donations will be accepted to benefit our weekly free dinner for the hungry.

More information online at www.capcoakland.net or by phone at 510/658-3665.

FORL: Rockridge Branch Library Thrives Despite Budget Challenges

by Jennifer James Alper, Friends of the Rockridge Library board member

Oakland's Public Library system has faced many challenges recently, but our Rockridge branch remains a bustling and vital part of our community. We owe thanks to our outstanding library staff, who have worked hard and managed to do more with less.

Branch and FORL News

■ Rockridge Branch Children's Librarian Gay Ducey has been named manager of the West Oakland branch. We will remember Gay's amazing story hours and the special gift she has for working with children. She will be missed.

■ Erica Siskind is now the Children's Librarian. She is developing wonderful programs for children and teens, and she is always ready with great book recommendations for kids of all ages.

■ Mayor Jean Quan recently appointed Kathryn O'Neal, co-chair of the Friends of the Rockridge Library (FORL) to the Library Advisory Commission (LAC). The LAC has 15 members representing Oakland, Piedmont and Emeryville and makes recommendations to the City Council on library policies, including fiscal oversight of the voter approved Measure Q. Ms. O'Neal is co-chair of the LAC's Advocacy and Outreach Committee. If you have any questions about the commission and/or Oakland Library policies, contact Ms. O'Neal at onealkathryn@gmail.com

FORL thanks the community for its vital support. FORL funds many key programs and projects, including the children's summer reading program; a variety of teen programs, including a teen advisory board

Claremont School Finds 3 'Authors Among Us'

Three Claremont students were recent successful participants in NaNoWriMo (National Novel Writing Month). Sixth graders Will Flattery-Vickness and Bella Trunzo, and 8th grader Lucy Flattery-Vickness all met the challenge of writing a set amount every single day during the month of November.

In addition to the glory of having completed a novel, each student's work will be published as a real, physical book.

Claremont Middle School hopes to add a copy of each Claremont author's novel to the school library collection.

Until then, you can learn more about our local authors and their books at: <http://claremontlibraryblog.edublogs.org/2012/12/20/the-authors-among-us/>

Kachelmeyer's term. Her background is in public policy development and application.

Describing her interest in board membership, Valentine wrote:

"I work in public policy and civic engagement, with intermittent forays into the legislative and initiative process. I recently left an organization – California Forward – which is dedicated to developing non-partisan policies that improve government accountability at the state level.

"As a new member of the RCPC board, I want to explore how to continue building ever-better tools that enable us to share information and communicate effectively about critical neighborhood issues. (The Rockridge News and neighborhood websites already publicize local issues so we have a terrific foundation to build upon.) One area where this could be useful is disaster preparedness. Perhaps we'd consider setting a goal of ensuring the entire Rockridge community is "ready to rock" by a certain date.

"Continuing to improve our ability to converse, problem-solve and coordinate within the community will create other opportunities, related, for example, to improving public safety, providing constructive input related to city-wide issues, or sharing information with other Oakland neighborhoods."

Publication Party for "Never Look a Polar Bear in the Eye" with Zac Unger.

Fire and Ice for Local Writer

Author Zac Unger is a lifelong Rockridge resident who can often be observed shuffling around the neighborhood with the other lifers.

His first book, "Working Fire," told of his becoming an Oakland firefighter-paramedic, a job he still holds. He has written for The Economist, Men's Journal, Slate, NPR, and other media outlets.

For his latest book, "Never Look a Polar Bear in the Eye," Unger demonstrated his dubious marital and parenting skills by dragging his entire family to the Arctic Circle and using his children as polar bear bait. However, in addition to his saintly wife, the three children survived the experience and now attend Chabot Elementary.

Unger has strong feelings about Safeway and weak feelings about soundwalls. Considering his writing, he says, "Looking back at both of the books I've written, 'Working Fire' was probably one of my two favorites."

Patricia Bracewell discusses and signs copies of her book, "Shadow on the Crown."

A Star is Born

We are about to have a fascinating woman from another world enter our lives. She is Emma of Normandy who, in 1002, at age fifteen, crosses the sea to wed old King Aethelred the Unready of England.

Young and alone, Emma must fight for her survival and station as queen in an unfamiliar and treacherous world.

Centuries later, Rockridge writer Patricia Bracewell unearthed Emma's story. By dint of her devotion to this young woman, Patricia herself is about to become the newest star in the firmament of prominent writers who live in and around Rockridge.

Her novel, "Shadow on the Crown," was just published by Viking/Penguin in hardback and paperback. It is so good that it is already being translated into half a dozen languages.

Meet the author for a book reading and signing at Diesel Books on February 8 at 7 p.m.

streetscape improvements in the North Oakland Hills, Rockridge and Temescal areas. Transportation Services Manager Wladimir Wlassowsky also discussed the petition process that the city will use to determine whether or not to invest these funds in the study, and the role for residents in that process.

The next steps in that process are for the city to identify eligible resident addresses (see map) and to notify the property owners of the process. The locations were identified using the findings of a 2009 noise study which defined the areas most likely to benefit from soundwall construction.

The city will make petitions and eligible addresses available to the public. Proponents of the soundwall studies will have one year to collect signatures. If at least two-thirds of eligible property owners sign the petition, the city will commission a soundwall study.

If not enough signatures are collected, the money will be used to fund other projects on the Caldecott list.

Eyes on Rockridge

Chris Jackson Is 'About Having a Neighborhood'

by Judith Doner Berne

Your and my experience walking, biking, driving, browsing, shopping, eating along College Avenue in Rockridge is better and safer because of Chris Jackson.

Jackson, a blunt, fast-talking, intense kind of guy, is the eyes, ears and voice – okay, and the face – of Rockridge’s Business Improvement District, known as the Rockridge District Association (RDA).

Businesses along College Avenue and adjacent side streets from 51st Street to Alcatraz are part of the RDA, paying an assessment based on their tax returns.

That money, says Louise Rothman-Riemer, RDA board member who works as a financial consultant, “must go back into the community.”

“We have had several operations managers,” Rothman-Riemer told me. “Chris is absolutely the best. He’s out on the street. He knows everyone including ‘the second story people,’ who have offices above street level.

“What really makes Chris so good,” she says, “is that he has a vision of what it takes to make this a really viable business district.”

“I’m about having a neighborhood,” Jackson told me, as he declines having his picture taken for this column. He feels more comfortable if he’s not widely recognized by the public as he does his job.

That generally means walking both sides of College a couple of times a day, assessing and somewhat reveling in what is right and detecting and doing his best to fix what is wrong.

“I do a visual inspection of the street,” Jackson says. “I try to meet with as many merchants as I can. I remove graffiti, pick up litter, look for anything amiss.

“I’m charged with looking physically at what’s going on. I do whatever needs to be done. That includes interfacing with the UPS and Fed Ex guys.”

On this day, it means trying to get police help with an apparently mentally ill, homeless man who was pestering a shop.

“I called the police at 10:30 a.m.,” Jackson tells me as we sit down to talk at Spasso’s Coffeehouse. “They’re just getting there at 1 p.m.” Later, as we walk to the site of the problem, a police car is there.

“I also work with social services,” he says. “We’re (College Avenue) not a mental hospital. We need to get these folks help. We actually got one person an apartment.”

As we walk, he points out the streetlight poles. He succeeded in getting the city to paint and to replace those that were rusted out, for the first time in 17 years.

He indicated a couple of new trees (“I watered them by hand for a year”) and several spaces awaiting others. “The city has stopped trimming trees,” Jackson adds. “The RDA paid $18,000 to have the trees done.”

His latest gripe is the wide, uneven tree wells which dot the sidewalks, just daring someone to trip over one of their rims and twist an ankle (or worse), which actually happened to him.

Jackson is hoping to get city permission to level them by filling each one with decomposed granite.

And although they are not part of the RDA, Jackson would like to see art in the windows of the student galleries across from the California College of the Arts campus on Broadway. “What a waste of window space,” he says of their often-drawn shades. “That could be a focal point of that end of the street.”

“I think he goes the extra mile,” says RDA board president Susan Bernosky, of Strahan Insurance Services, who recommended him for the operations manager post. “It’s more than just a job to him.”

Jackson is also the business district’s liaison to the Police Department, City Council, Chamber of Commerce and the Greater Rockridge Crime Prevention Council (NCPC) — and works to bring the Rockridge Community Planning Council (RCPC) and RDA into closer alignment. “We have to function holistically,” he insists.

Another way in which he has fashioned his job is by reaching out to Claremont Middle School and its students. He’s been

by Ortrun Niesar, Rockridge News contributor

2012 Summary

When it comes to real estate values, location consistently remains the most important determinant. Recent national and Bay Area-wide market developments have been most exciting to read about, but they don't give us an accurate picture of how the market has affected us locally. Rockridge, like many other neighborhoods, has its own distinct market profile; it's worthwhile taking a closer look at what is happening here.

Our Profile

Rockridge as a community offers much to be thankful for. We enjoy good climate, great walk scores, lovely well-maintained craftsman homes – very popular – and an excellent commute to San Francisco and UC Berkeley. We also have good availability of necessary services, such as hospitals, shopping and restaurants, churches, good public and private schools. Further, Rockridge is lucky to have engaged residents and an effective neighborhood organization in RCPC. These factors contribute greatly to the desirability of this area and thus to the stability of home prices. Foreclosures and short sales have been practically non-existent here. A steady increase in real estate values at a rate somewhat higher than what the stock market is yielding makes Rockridge a good investment.

Our Stats

The number of homes sold in Rockridge in 2012 was not much greater than in 2011. However, this is where the similarity ends. There were no foreclosures or short sales to speak of in the mix. Due to favorable mortgage interest rates, anticipation of impending tax changes and a renewed confidence in a revitalized economy in the Bay Area, the demand for housing grew exponentially here as the year progressed. Nearly every home for sale experienced a high number of interested buyers and multiple offers. Three-bedroom homes were woefully unavailable for purchase. In fact, the inventory of homes for sale never caught up with the demand, driving sale prices anywhere from 8 to 30 percent over asking for almost 70 percent of the available properties. All-cash offers were not unusual, often generating fast closings. Looking at the statistics we have been keeping since 2002, we continue to show a steady, reasonable recovery in real estate value. There is no fear of a bubble or failure. As a result, 2013 could finally bring us a sane, more balanced market.

What Your Home Is Worth

Criteria for evaluating a home differ greatly depending on the desired goal. It is best to work with your local realtors, appraisers and mortgage brokers to get a proper evaluation. However, you can get a good snapshot yourself by visiting open houses of similar size, condition, and amenities and applying a per square foot measure to your property.

Today, a good measure for your well-maintained two bedroom bungalow would be about $545 per square foot. A good average measure per square foot for a three-bedroom home is about $501. A three-bedroom home can be expected to sell at $975,000, but in 2012, 35 percent of our three-bedroom homes sold in the $1,000,000-$1,300,000 range.

Four-bedroom homes sold at an overall average of $408 per square foot, about 5 percent more than 2011. Expect a similar increase in 2013. Homes of four bedrooms or more tend to be larger, newer homes or historic homes that traditionally fetch prices well above the $1,200,000 mark, depending upon the number of bedrooms and the overall size and desirability of the home.

Outlook for 2013 Should You Buy?

If there is a buyer still hesitating, she will certainly miss the boat if she fails to make a move. Real estate is still a bargain and should be part of anyone's investment portfolio. Interest rates have never been lower.

At the same time, local rental rates are exceeding potential monthly mortgage payments. As the mortgage market adjusts itself to new regulations, there are, according to mortgage broker John Holmgren of Holmgren Associates, words of caution to be heeded. New qualifying guidelines include debt-to-loan ratio limits at 43 percent, no interest only or other "non-vanilla" loan products, no stated-income loans, etc. These new guidelines may seem onerous to some, but there are many government-insured programs available. It's a matter of finding a broker who can work within your parameters. Expect a more invasive process and a greater quantity of documentation.

Should You Sell?

Sellers have been justifiably reluctant to make a move these past few years if there was no pressing need. As the market rebounds, though, it may be worthwhile to take a closer look at your property, assess the cost of improvements, remodeling, energy upgrades and issues such as size and appropriate distribution of space for a changing life style. There are certainly benefits to moving either into a smaller or larger home with more fitting amenities. Should you decide that a move is best for you, if you purchased your home before 2005, you can be certain that you will do well.

In Memory

THE IMPORTANCE OF JANE POWELL

Oakland author, restoration authority, and preservationist Jane Powell died recently. But her books are still widely available, and will be of interest to many Rockridge residents not already familiar with her work.

Jane's enduring contribution, her legacy, will rest upon her exhaustive, informative, stylishly written books such as "Bungalow Bathrooms," "Bungalow Kitchens," "Bungalow Details: Exterior," and "Linoleum," and articles and essays too numerous to list. The immensely readable yet practical books have beautiful photographs by Linda Svendsen.

Jane's books brought her attention, her unique voice and wit brought her friends and fans. She enjoyed a period of living the privileged life in a glorious house in Berkeley. After her divorce, needing income, Jane began her project of buying houses – some eleven in all – fixing, restoring and then selling them, moving on to the next. The "Bunga-Mansion" (as she dubbed it) in the Fruitvale District became her keeper house, a daunting fixer.

We met as fellow Oakland Heritage Alliance board members, and Jane was actively involved in the battles to save landmarks like the Fox Theater and the Floral Depot. But she saw worth in more than just "A+" buildings, and as a true conservationist, she wrote about restoring old window sash, the trove of old growth timber in venerable buildings, the pleasure of vintage bathrooms and kitchens (even if a little tweaking was required).

Jane's resolve, independence, and pluck, even as she battled illness and foreclosure, were an inspiration. Her lymphoma didn't prevent her from writing her books, even the metastatic lung cancer couldn't keep her from her "Restoration Comedy" blog on her "Jane Powell – the Author, not the Actress!" website: <http://www.janepowell.org/>

Jane Powell's legacy will be the bungalows that find loving, more knowledgeable (thanks to her) admirers, and people who don't easily give up even when "Life backs up a giant truck full of lemons and dumps them on me," as Jane put it.

Jane's recent memorial service included testimonials by well-known authors and artists, like Paul Duchscherer and Tom Knechtel. Lexi Pandell wrote about Jane's life and work in the January 16 online issue of OaklandNorth, available at <http://bit.ly/XEuVj3>.

instrumental in pairing the Rockridge Masonic Lodge with Claremont's Dad's Club and the RDA for the annual Pancake Breakfast school fund-raiser. (This year it's set for Saturday, April 6.)

"Chris comes to all the Dad's Club meetings," says Paul Kagiwada, Claremont Dad's Club co-chair. "He always does a report on what goes on in the neighborhood. He does a lot to integrate the school and the business community."

"When we have a happy Claremont, we have a happy Avenue," Jackson says.

A 15-year Rockridge resident, Jackson traces his family's Oakland roots back to the 1930s. After attending Cal State Hayward in adaptive physical education, he taught and worked with learning disabled children and adults and later turned to high-end sales.

He was active in the Rockridge community before being hired four years ago by the RDA, including leading a movement to get children on his street included in the Peralta Elementary School district boundaries and his area adopted officially as part of Rockridge.

"My job is really to make Rockridge work," Jackson says. And that very much includes security.

"People need to understand this is not Mayberry," he says. "This is a very urban area." He has no problem approaching a shopper or a person sipping coffee at a café and reminding them to secure their purse or hi-tech device.

"It's really all about relationship-building with the RDA members, the property owners, the residents and," Jackson says, cracking his only smile, "most of all, the dogs."
