New Contractors for Private Security Patrols

by Safer Rockridge representatives

We are pleased to announce the formation of Safer Rockridge, a non-profit group formed to help organize safety ideas and initiatives in Rockridge, including the security patrols. Information about Safer Rockridge and the patrols can be found at www.saferrockridge.org.

The Safer Rockridge Security Patrols are funded by concerned Rockridge community members and businesses. The main goal of the security patrols is to enhance the safety of all Rockridge neighbors and guests on our streets and in our public spaces. The security patrols will do this by:

- patrolling neighborhood streets and public spaces to deter criminal activity
- being a resource to residents and guests who may have immediate security concerns
- providing the Oakland Police Department with documentation of observations that can help them in their duties of law enforcement in Rockridge.

Security officers from Premiere Protective Service (www.ppsguards.com) will provide the patrols. They will patrol the region shown in the map below.

The security officers will be unarmed. They are trained to observe and report suspicious or criminal activity, and their

What's the Latest at Safeway on College?

It is sometimes difficult to know what is happening at the construction site for Safeway on College. They work, they stop, they work again. Sometimes it rains.

To help keep people up-to-date, Stuart Flashman, an RCPC boardmember who along with other neighborhood group members negotiated with Safeway on project and construction design, has arranged with Elisabeth Jewel of Aroner, Jewel and Ellis (AJE) for regular construction site updates. AJE “provides local government lobbying, community outreach” and other services to its clients, according to its web site.

Here is a general look ahead for what to expect at the site in the next several weeks:

- Site preparation continues with the removal of more dirt. Crews have been forming the store walls and concrete pouring of foundation footings and walls.

- Claremont Avenue will be wet from the tire washing of all departing trucks. The street sweeper will be on hand to keep debris out of storm drains.

- In March, neighbors and shoppers will begin to see new parking restrictions. On Claremont, the coveted all-day casual carpool parking spots will be removed. Parking on College from Claremont up to 63rd Street will also be temporarily restricted. All restricted spaces will have signage indicating how long the spaces will be blocked off.

20 AGENDA: March 2014 RCPC Town Hall Meeting

Thursday, March 20 | 7-9 p.m. Rockridge Library

WE MEAN GREEN: Add trees and landscaping; remove utility poles; improve the environment, health and property values. Learn how from local experts and neighbors.

Rockridge is regionally known and locally loved for its neighborhood charm. Over recent months, we've discussed making our streets safer, but how can we work with the city and our neighbors to make our streets even more beautiful and inviting?

On March 20 from 7-9 p.m. at the Rockridge Branch Library, hear from local experts and neighbors about how we can add trees and landscaping, bring down the cluttering utility poles, and make streets safer for pedestrians to walk, cyclists to ride, and kids to play by implementing traffic-calming design.

Many studies have shown that, in addition to enhancing quality of life, these improvements can have a dramatic beneficial impact on health, the environment and property values.

Our conversation will focus on what the city does, what neighbors can team up to do, and what you can do that can add up to greener, cleaner, and safer streets in Rockridge.

Reward: Stolen Antique Burl Bowl

An American antique wooden burl bowl was stolen from Talisman antique shop on College Avenue in Rockridge on Saturday, December 28. It measures about 24" in diameter by 9" in height.

The burl bowl has been in the owner's family for at least eight generations. Originally a wedding gift, through the generations it accompanied the family from Illinois to Southern California, to the Sierra Nevada, and finally the East Bay. The bowl holds the family's history in America. Its loss has caused immeasurable grief to the family.

Talisman is offering a $1,000 reward for information leading to the return of the bowl. Please contact Talisman at 510/653-7998.

RCPC Land Use Committee

The RCPC Land Use Committee meets Wednesday, March 26, 7:30 p.m., Rockridge Library meeting room. Topics will include an update on the Rockridge Safeway project. Agendas: Please check with committee chair Stuart Flashman, 652-5373, or stufash@aol.com, the week before for an updated agenda.

Land Use Update

by Stuart Flashman, RCPC Land Use Committee chair

College Avenue Safeway Project

College & Claremont Avenues
Construction continues on this large and important project. Construction updates will be reported regularly in The Rockridge News, beginning this month. (See story on page 1.) RCPC and the three other community groups will meet monthly with Safeway to discuss construction progress and any construction activity issues. If you live near the store and see or hear anything you think Safeway needs to know about (and perhaps do something about), please contact RCPC at 869-4200 or info@rockridge.org.

Is Safeway for Sale?

Recent reports of the Safeway corporation being up for sale have raised concerns about how a sale would affect Rockridge's two Safeway projects. While it's impossible to predict whether the company will be sold, and what a potential buyer might decide, word has it that the two Rockridge stores have been, on a sales-per square-foot basis, among Safeway's most profitable stores. It seems unlikely a new owner would fail to rebuild the College Avenue store or continue to move forward with Safeway's approved plans for the Rockridge Shopping Center rebuild. We will report here any changes we learn about.

The city of Oakland has identified 481 homes whose residents are eligible to petition the city to fund the soundwall study. As the deadline approaches, problems have emerged regarding this petition process:

FROG Seeks Funds for Added Park Features

Well-known to be little-known facts about Frog Park

Did you know that just 15 years ago, what is now the popular Frog Park was a mass of overgrown weeds surrounded by a chain link fence?

Did you know that the Frog Park play structures were built by 1,300 volunteers over 10 days in 2001?

We would like you to know, too, that we're trying to raise $50,000 to add toddler swings and other fun features to Frog Park. (We're off to a good start: $11,000 raised so far.)

Sustained over the years by volunteer maintenance and generous donations, Frog Park is a testament to the power of a community-driven vision. It's a local treasure that started with the simple notion that our neighborhood needed a safe place for kids to play. Let's finish what we started. Donate via www.frogpark.org/ or mail checks to: "FROG," 4123 Broadway, PMB 311, Oakland, CA 94611

The Lorax Project Plants Over 100 New Trees in Rockridge

by Rich Proulx

In December 2013, the Lorax Project was announced in the pages of The Rockridge News. Three months later, a line of redwood trees has been planted and is taking root along Highway 24.

Concerned by scientific research that demonstrates negative health effects from exposure to pollution for people who live, work, or attend schools near major freeways, Lorax Project founders sought to create a tree barrier which research has shown significantly decreases the transmission of air pollution.

Members of the Claremont Club on Hillcrest Avenue generously hosted a community meeting on December 15 for neighbors to learn more about the project. Speakers included Children's Hospital Supervising Physician Gina Lewis and Chabot Elementary PTA President Laura Burnett. Neighbors then formed a committee to support the project. Pledges from meeting attendees were enough to plant 22 trees.

Over the course of the next few weeks, more than 70 neighbors donated. The project found a key partner in Oakland non-profit Urban Biofilter, who donated many trees and provided tools and key volunteer support. "Urban Biofilter is thrilled to have contributed to the Lorax Project's success," stated Sydney Moss of Urban Biofilter. The Sierra Club also provided a great deal of expertise and volunteer assistance.

While the project had the support of Chabot Elementary for some time, it became apparent shortly before the planting date that necessary Oakland Unified School District (OUSD) approval was lacking. Oakland Board of Education member Jody London helped secure passage of an OUSD board resolution in January to keep the planting date intact.

Thirty-five volunteers braved the rain on January 8, pre-digging the holes to ensure a successful planting. Using picks, digging pry bars, and five jackhammers, volunteers broke up the tough soil laden with rubble from the construction of Highway 24.

Tech Engineering Academy: Bridges to Learning

by Ronnie Spitzer, Tech parent

It's so quiet, you can hear a bridge break. Two hundred collectively held breaths finally release when the balsa and glue creation collapses with a crack under its load. Once "8 lbs for bridge #50" gets recorded, the annual Engineering Academy Bridge Competition officially ends.

Started 19 years ago in a collaboration between Tech and the American Society of Civil Engineers, the competition quickly became a most beloved tradition at Tech. Using supplied materials, academy juniors – joined by sophomores and seniors – must construct a bridge as a class project. As many as 100 academy students work together on the final 50 bridges typically constructed until one is declared the strongest.

The academy grew out of Oakland's now-defunct school vocational training program. A multi-classroom area once filled with lathes, milling machines, welding stations, drill presses, and drafting tables has been transformed with workstations and a 3-D printer.

The Oakland Unified School District (OUSD) developed the academy system in 1986 to help students achieve college readiness; the Engineering Academy followed in 1987. Two Tech teachers created the rigorous curriculum in use today, designed to teach visualization skills and the connection between mathematics and physics to budding engineers through project-based learning.

Parker Merrill, an original Academy co-founder, continues as program director. Raised on a New Jersey farm, his curiosity about how things work evolved into his college major, Industrial Arts. He comes

Chabot's Spring Fling Auction: Online Access to Amazing Items

by Chabot PTSA members

Chabot Elementary's annual auction is just a month away, and this year's Spring Fling event has a goal of raising $150,000 through an online auction and gala event.

This is a community-wide effort that raises funds to support Chabot's music, science, art, media, library, gardening, P.E. and Spanish programs that are offered to nearly 600 students in Kindergarten through 5th grades. These programs are an essential part of what makes our local public school a place where creativity, curiosity and intellect are nurtured.

Local Masonic Lodge Master Digs Deep to Uncover Its Past

by Judith Doner Berne

When the all but forgotten gravesite of a two-time Oakland mayor is re-dedicated at 11 a.m. Saturday, March 29 in Mountain View Cemetery, David A. Forsyth will have completed his quest.

The Rockridge resident, who incidentally is my backyard neighbor, is the current Master (think president) of Oakland Durant Rockridge Lodge 188 F.&A.M. (Free and Accepted Masons). Founded in 1917, the Lodge is located in the award-winning landmark building on the west side of College between Kales Avenue and Taft Street. The building was constructed in the 1920s by the Lodge.

Forsyth, born in Edinburgh, Scotland, immigrated to the United States when he was 22 and later became a Mason, like his Scottish grandfather before him.

“When I joined Oakland Durant Rockridge Masonic Lodge seven years ago, I always wondered about the portrait that hangs on the wall of our beautiful Lodge room,” he says.

It was obviously old, had dates on it, but no name. As “a keen amateur historian,” Forsyth says, “I wanted to know about this man; who he was and why had he such a place of honor on our wall?”

From a list of past masters he determined it was Nathan Weston Spaulding, the first master of Oakland Masonic Lodge 188 – which combined with the Rockridge and Durant Lodges in the 1980s.

“I always intended to dig more,” but work and family took precedence, he said. Turning to business, Forsyth formed UIB Insurance Brokerage Services, Inc. in 2009 and, later, married Batya, a partner in Hanson Bridgett, a San Francisco law firm. Their daughter Hannah is five.

“Masons don’t do anything quickly,” he also noted. “Everything is pursued with patience.”

Then, two winters ago, a leak from the building’s water heater threatened the Lodge archives. As Forsyth and other Lodge members worked to move them to drier ground, “The first one I pulled out was the oldest book,” Forsyth told me. “And I was looking at the page record that started everything we have here.”

He had happened upon the March 1868 minutes of a group attempting to start a new Masonic Lodge in Oakland. The first name on the page was Nathan Weston Spaulding.

“It was one of those moments you realize that this was meant to be,” Forsyth said. “I was about to start the journey which has taken me from Maine (where Spaulding was born in 1829) to California (where he was lured by the gold rush in 1851) and ended at Mountain View Cemetery (where he was buried in 1903).”

Turning to the Internet, Forsyth learned that Spaulding was indeed a man for all seasons who greatly contributed to the growth and stature of Oakland.

A carpenter by trade, Spaulding built and opened the first hotel in Campo Seco, one of the early gold mining camps. After marrying, he moved to Sacramento to manufacture inserted-tooth saws and later invented and patented “the Spaulding saw,” said to have revolutionized the circular saw business.

Then it was on to San Francisco, where he established the Pacific Saw Manufacturing Co. and N.W. Spaulding & Bros. in Chicago with two of his brothers.

But Oakland beckoned in 1866. There, according to news accounts, he served on the city council, and, as chairman of the streets committee, helped lay out, pave and light the city’s streets. Elected mayor twice without opposition, Spaulding also reportedly initiated the move to relocate the county seat from San Leandro to Oakland.

“He was a huge philanthropist, donating all of his mayoral salary to charity, adopting an orphan boy and serving on the first board of Stanford University, started by his friend Leland Stanford,” Forsyth recounted. Spaulding also served four years as Assistant U.S. Treasurer, appointed by President James A. Garfield.

David A. Forsyth, Lodge Master, researched the history of the long-ago Mason in the framed painting, above, who turned out to be one of the founders of today’s College Avenue Masonic Lodge. /JUDY BERNE

Once Forsyth found out that Spaulding was buried in Mountain View Cemetery, he could have turned to cemetery records to uncover the gravesite. But he wasn’t looking for an easy quest.

“My wife, daughter and I love to go rambling through the cemetery on weekends,” he told me. “I had uncovered so much and I wanted to find the last piece of the puzzle myself. There’s a treasure hunt aspect to it.”

It took six months to discover it among Mountain View’s 175,000 graves. “We came upon an amazing clover leaf-shaped site, big by today’s standards,” but somewhat deteriorated, Forsyth described. “Although it showed no outward Masonic symbols, the site is Masonic in its setup. The checkered pavement and central altar give it away.”

When attempts to find any living relatives fell short, the Lodge elected to have the fallen urns, cracked walls and foundation repaired. An inscribed one-by-two-foot open book, fashioned from Sierra white granite, will be added to mark the rededication.

“It’s very special that someone outside the family wants to do this,” says Ray Ortner, Mountain View’s sales manager. “David had a lovely vision. It shows the tribute the Lodge wants to bestow upon this gentleman.”

“David has been a one-man band,” says Lawrence Altomare, who has been Lodge secretary for 14 years. “He got us to learn about our history in the community and that we have connections to both major universities in the Bay Area.” (Henry Durant, another early Lodge member, co-founded UC Berkeley and was its first president. Durant also was a twice-elected mayor of Oakland.)

“David discovered that the governor of California during the 1906 earthquake, George Pardee, was a member of our Lodge too,” Altomare says, and was mayor of Oakland, like his father before him.

And when Forsyth was doing research at Oakland’s City Hall, “He also saw that the city was missing one portrait in its mural of past mayors,” Altomare says. Yes, it was Spaulding.

Spaulding will be donated to the city to complete its mural at the rededication. Mayor Jean Quan and the head of the state’s Masons have said they will attend. Stanford University President John L. Hennessy and Secretary of the Treasury Jacob J. Lew are other dignitaries who have been invited.

“The theme of my year was to review our history and show we are standing on the shoulders of giants,” Forsyth says. I think we’d all agree: Mission accomplished.

More About the Lodge

The Lodge website describes how, in 1917, the Rockridge Lodge was founded, later receiving its charter on October 11, 1918. After holding its first few meetings at Brooklyn Lodge #225, on East 14th Street near downtown Oakland, the Lodge moved into a building (since replaced) at the corner of College and Keith, where Market Hall now stands. In 1926-27, the Lodge constructed and moved into the landmark building which is still home to ODR (Oakland Durant Rockridge) Lodge.

Have a look at the Lodge’s art deco interior on Saturday, April 26, when the Lodge co-sponsors its annual pancake breakfast to benefit Claremont Middle School, one of its charitable endeavors to aid education.

Changes for DVD Circulation at the Rockridge Branch Library

by Jon Gabel and Annette Floystrup, co-chairs, Rockridge DVD Project

The Oakland Public Library (OPL) has announced that DVDs can now be requested from any branch of the Library and delivered to the branch of your choice. Up to now, only books could be requested from other branches. For Rockridge patrons, this means easy access to the large DVD collection at the Main Branch, as well as to the many television series DVDs at the Piedmont Branch. As part of the new policy, DVDs will “float” throughout the OPL system. This means that DVDs will be shelved at the branch where they were returned.

We want contributors to the DVD Project to be kept current on policy changes that affect the collection, especially when they are as positive as this. This new policy is consistent with the deal made with the OPL as part of the Rockridge DVD Project. In exchange for the right to float all DVDs at some future date, OPL paid for the cataloging of all the DVDs that the DVD Project brought in. As the cost of the cataloging would have been more than that of the DVDs themselves, we considered (and still consider) this to be a terrific deal.

For several years, OPL patrons have only had access to the DVD Project materials at the Rockridge Branch, but now these materials will circulate system wide. If patrons from other branches request DVDs from Rockridge, those DVDs may temporarily end up on the shelves at other branches, but those same DVDs can also be requested right back to Rockridge. What will be lost is the ability to browse all titles just by looking at the shelves. What will be gained is that there will be more – and different – titles available here as Rockridge patrons request DVDs from other branches and return them to Rockridge.

The Rockridge DVD Project expanded the DVD section to both sides of a full aisle in the stacks. There are now so many DVDs on the shelves that the number of DVDs which can be checked out at one time has gone from four to ten. With the new float policy, there could actually be more DVDs in the Rockridge Branch than under the old policy. It will depend on how many DVDs Rockridge patrons request from other branches.

Brian Carthan, manager of the Public Works Park and Tree Services Division, contributed to the success of the project by permitting his staff to dig the holes at Chabot Recreation Area.

On February 15, 45 volunteers arrived for the tree planting. London and City Councilmember Dan Kalb spoke to the crowd and planted the first tree. In all, over 100 trees were planted (chiefly redwood trees) at Chabot Recreation Area, Chabot Elementary and at residences located on Miles Avenue. The project also donated over a dozen trees to the Broadway Pollinator Garden at the corner of Broadway and Keith.

There are other tree planting projects in Oakland on the horizon. “The Sierra Club tree team has a big piece of Urban Biofilter’s original request for 500 trees and is planning to plant at three West Oakland schools (Lafayette, Prescott, and Hoover) on March 15, 22, and 29,” stated Arthur Boone of the Sierra Club. Added Moss, “There is much more work to be done and we look forward to continuing to work with our amazing volunteers to plant more trees.”

Rich Proulx is the director of The Lorax Project and can be reached at richproulx@lyceuminstitute.org. For more information about future planting efforts, contact Arthur Boone at arboone3@gmail.com.

Asphalt Trips Up Hardy Dog Park Renovation

by Becky Alseth, Rockridge resident

Patrons, residents and local businesses joined forces last August to raise over $13,000 to renovate dilapidated Hardy Dog Park, but the project has run into a tough obstacle: asphalt.

Before it became Oakland's first dog run, the area had been a Caltrans equipment yard. Three thousand square feet of the original asphalt still remain, damaging dogs' paws when they run and breaking teeth when they fetch. It's also a key contributor to the park's notorious mud puddles.

◆ Pernicious mud puddles at dog park gates make access difficult and dangerous for users. Layers of old asphalt cause rainwater and other runoff to puddle up for months on end. /SCENIC STREETS

"The disabled and elderly have particular difficulty accessing the park," says Peter Lund, founder of Scenic Streets, the group leading the project. "Rainwater and hose runoff are deflected by the asphalt and create mud which can take months to evaporate in this shady space."

City planners determined that if the park was going to be renovated, it would need to be more ADA compliant. The old asphalt would need to be removed so a smooth gate-to-gate path could be installed. Upgraded gate latches would also be required. The additional cost would be $10,000 more than Scenic Streets had raised and the asphalt work must be completed before any other improvements could begin.

Ironically, City Hall does have an ADA budget on-hand, but Lund says his group was told the fundamental fixes Hardy needs don't qualify for funding. So even though the dog park had never been compliant, the community would need to pay to make it so if any other renovations were to proceed.

Organizers have been scrambling to find a solution. Caltrans still owns the land, but its contract with the city releases it of any responsibility. Councilman Dan Kalb's office has gotten involved and hopes to encourage one of the city's asphalt contractors to step in pro bono.

"It's been a bit frustrating" says Lund. "We're so close to bringing this popular amenity up to community standards.

"We also hope community members with ideas or resources will step forward with ideas and referrals. I can be reached by email via peter@scenicstreets.org."

Wow!! The market continues to show strong demand in Rockridge with a low inventory of homes. Rates remain reasonably low but economic pressure is building for them to increase this year. Interestingly, these factors make it a good time to both sell or buy. Reminder: Average and median statistics on home sales are just that, averages. They don't dictate at all what would happen with a specific home as there are variables including pricing, showing conditions, marketing strategies and timing factors on every property.

first response to any criminal or safety concern will be to contact the Oakland Police Department. They will then observe, report, and assist anyone in need when it is safe to do so.

Safer Rockridge Security Patrols will provide service to all residents and guests in the service area and are supported entirely by community contributions. The amount of patrolling provided will be directly proportional to the amount of funds raised. Safer Rockridge's goal is for enough households to participate to support two patrol cars for 12 hours per day, every day of the week. To meet this goal, 630 households will need to contribute $30/month. While $30/month is the suggested contribution level, households can contribute at any level.

During the month of March, a limited patrol will be supported using remaining funds from the CrowdTilt fundraising last fall. Safer Rockridge is now raising money for full patrols for April, May, and June. Please see www.saferrockridge.org to contribute.

Please send comments and questions to Safer Rockridge by emailing saferrockridge@gmail.com.

have no voice in soundwalls, despite noise measurements of weekday maximums of almost 80 decibels. Excluded, too, are those who use Frog Park: families with children, caregivers, dog park users, and walkers. And everyone who lives more than two blocks from the freeway: also excluded.

The 5-7 decibel reduction will make a huge difference to everyone who lives, studies, works or plays near the freeway. Decibels are a logarithmic scale: 80 decibels is four times as loud as 60 decibels (80 decibels is like standing next to a blender, 60 like being next to a vacuum cleaner).

I urge readers to sign the petition, and help everyone affected by the freeway noise.

Rockridge Real Estate: 2013 Review

by Ortrun Niesar, Rockridge News Contributor

In reviewing real estate statistics for 2013, we are happy to announce that Rockridge home values have clearly returned to pre-recession levels. In fact, we have recovered better and more quickly than most other neighborhoods in Oakland or Berkeley. It seems that, despite our endemic urban problems, Rockridge retains its appeal as a vibrant premier residential neighborhood in the East Bay.

Much of the popularity of Rockridge can be credited to a unique blend of natural attributes of the area. We enjoy excellent climate and a natural setting. Location, yes, but people, too, make the difference. The general respect for the Arts and Crafts heritage has preserved a friendly, small-town atmosphere and relatively open spaces even though the population density resembles that of nearby more urban environments.

Neighborhood streets are walkable, lined with attractive historic cottages. College Avenue supplies a lively restaurant and shopping scene as well as an easy commute to the City and UC Berkeley. There is also good availability of necessary services, such as hospitals, public transportation and public and private schools. All of these factors help to make this a great place where people want to live and raise their families.

Market Analysis

It is safe to say that the area has made a real recovery, one that will last. It is hoped 2014 will finally bring us a sane, more balanced housing market.

The number of homes sold in Rockridge in 2013 rose to levels experienced before the recession: 122 homes and a good 30 percent over the previous year. It is hoped that number will rise even higher in 2014.

With mortgage rates still at historic lows and the presence of a large number of cash buyers, it would not be surprising if overbidding were the norm again this year. In 2013 the average increase over list price was about 10 percent, but a whopping 83 percent of the sold prices were up to as much as 30 percent over asking. More homes on the market would help to keep prices more realistic and in line with affordability. Nobody wants to see another bubble.

What's different about the 2013-14 market? Cash purchases are the wild card. They have the advantage of by-passing the appraisal contingency and assuring quick and easy closes. In 2013, 30 percent of buyers purchasing two-bedroom homes in Rockridge did so with cash, skewing the market numbers. Cash buyers won't go away soon as long as the tech industry keeps going strong. In fact, to accommodate cash buyers, new mortgage banking programs are available that allow a conversion to a mortgage within a narrow window after the purchase has been completed.

Is this going to cause another meltdown or a bubble? Not very likely. The good news is that new banking regulations seem to be working. There is real money behind those sales. Will there be a ceiling on those rising home prices? Most forecasts say yes, since salaries are not rising to keep pace and economic uncertainties still abound worldwide. But here in Rockridge, San Francisco's burgeoning tech industry and high housing costs need to be factored in. 2014 will be a good year.

What Your Home Is Worth

Here is an update from the previous year. Criteria for evaluating a home differ greatly depending on the overall profile of the home. It is best to work with your local realtors, appraisers and mortgage brokers to get a proper evaluation. However, you can get a good snapshot yourself by going to open houses of homes of similar size, condition, amenities and applying a per square foot measure to your property.

Today, a good measure for a well-maintained two-bedroom bungalow (about 1,222 sf.) would be about $650 per square foot, considerably higher than last year. A good average measure per square foot for a medium sized (1,855 sf.) three-bedroom home is about $544, but it is likely your home could fetch a much higher price based on its appeal, condition, scarcity and location. Four-bedroom homes (about 2,695 sf.) sold at an overall average of $456 per square foot in 2013, but homes of four bedrooms or more tend to be much larger, newer homes or historic homes that traditionally fetch prices well above that depending upon the total number of bedrooms, the overall size and desirability of the home.

Whether it is new or old, worth a lot or not so much, enjoy your Rockridge home.

This analysis covers Rockridge single-family-home sales from the Berkeley border in the north, south to Broadway Terrace and 51st Street, west to Telegraph Avenue and east to Highway 13. Information supplied by East Bay Regional Data (EBRD) for 2013 is deemed to be reliable but not guaranteed.

Community-Sponsored Benches Now Grace Library Yard

by Sarah Washburn, FORL board member

When Friends of the Rockridge Library (FORL) Co-Chair Kathy O'Neal noticed people using the library wi-fi outside the building walls, she had an idea: What if FORL funded a seating area to provide a more comfy spot to surf the web, wait for a friend, or enjoy a good library book?

This thought set in motion a series of events we're calling: It takes a village to provide a bench.

FORL Co-Chair Carol Bieri contacted Chris Jackson from the Rockridge District

Association (RDA) to learn more about the benches that line College Avenue. Bieri shared, "Since the benches were already city-approved and had held up well, and we weren't interested in introducing another design element to the streetscape, we thought finding out where the existing benches came from was a good idea."

She was right: it turns out that surplus benches were languishing on top of a container in the City of Oakland Corporation Yard, and Jackson generously and enthusiastically donated a few to FORL.

With the help of Chris Holt, acting manger of the yard, a forklift, some donated cement, FORL board member Brett Young's construction expertise, and the steadfast support of the project by Director of Library Services Gerry Garzón, I am thrilled to announce an installed and already well-loved bench near the library's driveway on Manila Avenue.

Please enjoy it, and be on the lookout for more improvements to the library compliments of FORL and the wonderful "village" of Rockridge.

To learn more about how the Friends of the Rockridge Library support the library and how you can share your ideas, visit www.friendsofrockridgelibrary.org.

Land Use Committee

one of College Avenue's continuing problems is the multiplication of street frontage non-retail uses on the avenue. This runs counter to the intent of the C-31 – now redesignated CN-1 – zoning, which requires a conditional use permit for most non-retail uses. Under Oakland's zoning ordinance, once a use permit is granted for a particular site, it never expires, regardless of whether that use actually continues on the site. In fact, a single site can have three or four use permits for different non-retail uses, all available for a new tenant without having to go through a new approval process or even be reviewed for new conditions of approval. Essentially, a building owner can collect a "closet" of use permits and pull the appropriate one out whenever a potential tenant wants to start a particular use at the site.

The problem with this is that retail use loses its favored status under the zoning, which can mean that retail gradually gets displaced by other uses, such as office use. Over time, this could result in the eclipse of College Avenue's reputation as a favored retail area.

RCPC is looking at asking the city, as part of its citywide zoning update, to revise its zoning ordinance so that when a use requiring a use permit leaves a site and is replaced by a different use, the use permit for the prior use would expire. This would not be a problem when, for example, one restaurant is replaced by another one in the same space. It would, however, mean that if a restaurant left and was replaced by a retail use, a later restaurant use would require a new use permit. RCPC believes this would help restore the zoning's intended preference for retail uses.

RCPC is talking to community and merchant groups in other parts of the city to see if this is also a concern in other CN-1 zoned areas before bringing the proposal to the city for its consideration.
