June Town Hall Meeting Draws a Full House Mayor Quan, Interim Police Chief Sean Whent at Joint RCPC/NCPC Meeting

by Stuart Flashman

It was obvious that public safety was much on people's minds, especially with the looming deadline for the city to approve a new budget, as a capacity crowd filled the Rockridge Branch Library meeting room for the June 20 joint Rockridge Community Planning Council – Greater Rockridge Neighborhood Crime Prevention Council Town Hall meeting.

A major reason for the large turnout was the presence of Oakland Mayor Jean Quan and Interim Police Chief Sean Whent, who both focused their remarks on public safety issues.

Before Chief Whent and the Mayor arrived, NCPC Chair Frank Castro and

An Early Look at Rockridge Kitchens for Volunteer Tour Docents

by Nancy Sale, docent coordinator

If you are a design enthusiast, community supporter, or just love hearing stories first-hand, please join us as a volunteer docent for the 2013 Rockridge Kitchen Tour.

Docents are a key element to the success of our tour, and guide our guests with stories and insights that highlight the unique features of each kitchen. Docents receive a pre-tour that offers a behind-the-scenes look at the kitchen, and hear its "story" directly from the homeowners and architects/contractors who created it. In addition, docents receive a complimentary ticket to visit the other tour kitchens on the RCPC's "Tasteful Tour" of Rockridge kitchens is coming in September. Tickets for this biennial fundraising event go on sale then. In the meantime, there are ways to help support the event: volunteering for a support position – perhaps as a docent – or advertising in the tour brochure, as described in the accompanying articles.

this biennial event possible; there is still time to get involved and contribute your talents to this community fundraiser. There are several ways you can help:

❖ Be a Docent: Our team of volunteer docents guides tour guests by sharing their knowledge of the kitchens. Volunteer a few hours of your time on the day of tour, and you can spend the rest of the day enjoying the other kitchens for free. Contact Nancy Sale, 510/655-4625, or e-mail docents@rockridge.org, for more information.

❖ Purchase Advertising: Do you have a business that serves the Rockridge neighborhood? Our tour brochure offers print advertising space, and our website offers an online presence for the two-year period until the next tour. Contact Natalie Mehta at natalie.mehta@yahoo.com for more information.

❖ Spread the Word: Ticket sales are the primary form of fundraising for this event, and each tour brings guests from all over the Bay Area. Help us publicize the event by sharing the event date and details with your networks, family, and friends.

If you enjoy "backstage" access and have a few hours to contribute to your community on Sunday, September 29, contact Nancy Sale, 510/655-4625, or e-mail docents@rockridge.org, for more information.

RCPC Land Use Committee

The RCPC Land Use Committee meets the fourth Wednesday of the month at the Rockridge Branch Library, upstairs meeting room, 7:30 p.m.

Next meeting: Wednesday, July 24. Topics will include an update on the College Avenue Safeway and Rockridge Shopping Center Projects, as well as possible discussion of the city's off-street parking requirements. Agendas: Check with committee chair Stu Flashman, 652-5373, or stufash@aol.com the week before the meeting for an updated agenda.

Land Use Update

by Stuart Flashman, RCPC Land Use Committee chair

■ College Avenue Safeway Project College & Claremont Avenues

Unconfirmed reports indicate that the current store will be closing early in July, possibly as soon as July 8. Demolition will begin shortly thereafter, once hazardous material removal is complete. Construction of the new store will likely begin early in the fall.

RCPC and the other community groups who reached a settlement with Safeway on the new store have reviewed the 60 percent completion stage construction drawings, and will be meeting with Safeway to discuss several concerns, primarily concerning modifications to the design of the retail building at College and Claremont. Safeway indicates the 90 percent construction drawings will be completed in mid-July, and it will apply for building permits shortly after that.

■ Rockridge Shopping Center Rebuild and Expansion Project, Broadway and Pleasant Valley Road

Safeway's second Rockridge-area project is to rebuild and enlarge this major shopping area, adding about 120,000 sq. ft. and including a larger (65,000 sq.ft.) Safeway. According to Darin Ranelletti (238-3663; DRanelletti@oaklandnet.com), the city planner working on the project, a consultant study and draft report on impacts from project-related neighborhood cut-through traffic has been completed and is being reviewed by planning staff. He doesn't expect the final EIR to be completed and published until September.

After a short review period, the Planning Commission will meet to consider the EIR and the project. The city is working with Safeway to arrange a meeting with the landowner to discuss whether the master lease can be modified to allow residential development on the site, something both the Planning Commission and Councilmember Dan Kalb have said they highly favor for this large and centrally located site.

RCPC is continuing to push to improve project access for transit, bicyclists, and pedestrians.

■ Smitten Ice Cream 5800 College Avenue at the Corner of Birch Court

The committee heard from founder Robyn Fisher and manager Nick Wood about this proposed ice cream parlor at the former site of Great Harvest Bakery.

Both the ice cream and associated waffle cones would be made fresh on-site, they said. The ice cream making involves a new, patented, technique using liquid nitrogen to quick-freeze the ice cream, so it can be made to order for each customer. The owners are committed to using local, organic ingredients and plan to use 100 percent recyclable or compostable materials to minimize waste.

They have already met with and had an ice cream social with nearby neighbors and plan a food-focused science program in cooperation with local schools. The committee felt the proposal was a good fit for the location and would be a unique addition to the commercial area.

The proposal will be considered by the RCPC board at its September meeting. The project planner is Mike Rivera (238-6417, MRivera@oaklandnet.com).

■ The Barrel Room Wine Shop and Bar 5330 College Avenue

This is a proposal for a wine and beer bar/tasting room, which would also serve light meals to accompany tastings and have wine available for purchase by the bottle. This would be its second location, the first being in San Francisco in the Hayes Valley area. It would be the fourth similar shop to open on College Avenue in the past few years, the other three being The Trappist, near 63rd Street, Toast at the corner of Chabot Road and Enoteca Molinari near Taft Avenue.

Unlike the others, however, it would serve both wine and beer, with an emphasis on unusual and little-known varieties, and serve "flights" of related wines or beers to give customers a sense of the particular varietals being featured.

Hours are still being finalized, but would be roughly from 11 a.m. to midnight, perhaps somewhat later on weekends.

The committee generally reacted favorably, feeling that the store could be a welcome addition to this section of the Avenue. Some concern was expressed about parking availability, but given the size of the store (1,000 sq. ft.), it was felt this would probably not be a serious problem. The committee also felt that the owners should be cautioned to respect nearby residential neighbors, particularly in terms of late-night operations.

This proposal will also go to the RCPC board at its September meeting. To RCPC's knowledge, no planner has yet been assigned.

■ Off-street Parking Requirements "Citywide Rezoning, Phase II"

The city, as part of Phase II of the citywide rezoning, is considering modifying off-street parking requirements for new construction. The aim is to reduce parking requirements in areas with good public transit availability (such as Rockridge) where the need for private autos may be less. This could raise concerns if it led to more severe parking "crunches" in the bordering residential areas.

According to planner Darin Ranelletti, (238-3663; DRanelletti@oaklandnet.com) the city expects to release a study/report on residential off-street parking in July for public review and comment. Those interested should contact the planner to receive notification when the report issues and to learn how to get a copy.

 Quality service

Thank you, Jim Ryugo

Jim Ryugo retired at the end of June as Building Services Manager after 33 years of service in the city's Public Works Agency. He began working with Rockridge neighbors on a park when he was a manager responsible for park maintenance and trees in about half the city. He was instrumental in renovating Colby Park and, later, in the multiyear effort creating Frog Park, the Rockridge-Temescal Greenbelt.

June 15 Interim Day Spruces Up the Park; Fall Maintenance Set

by Leonora Sea

Delightful new neighbors and dear old friends converged on the Rockridge Temescal greenbelt and Frog Park for the annual June Interim Cleanup Party, co-sponsored by the DMV Neighbors Association and FROG.

After a wake-up cup of coffee and some bagels and coffee cake, volunteers shifted clean sand into the Little Frog Park sandbox, spread out cushioning wood chips at Big Frog Park, and weeded and spread mulch along Redondo and in the butterfly garden. Others picked up litter, pulled out ivy, and generally spruced up the park in time for summer. Many thanks to those who came – especially the Kiwanis – pitched in, and accomplished much.

Volunteer events like this and the First Saturdays, Earth Day, and Creek-to-Bay Day, keep our beloved greenbelt a welcoming and hospitable place for all, including native wildlife that thrive when invasive plants and ugly litter are kept under control. Come over to the park, get to know your neighbors (we're a lot of fun) and have a great time caring for our special place.

Upcoming cleanup days:

- August 3, 10 a.m.-1 p.m.
- September 7, 9 a.m.- 3 p.m.

FROG Seeks Volunteers With Specific Skills

FROG is planning to implement the highest priorities based on the FROG community priorities survey results and on ongoing initiatives (See The Rockridge News, March 2013: www.rockridge.org/news/frog-news-survey, or the full report at www.frogpark.org).

FROG seeks volunteers with the following

Dear Jim:

It was just over 20 years ago that you began working with parents in the Rockridge community to find a place for a children's park, and with your help and guidance, we were able to renovate Colby Park. We could never have dreamed that this small project would develop into a 21-year collaboration, the centerpiece of which is Frog Park, the Rockridge-Temescal Greenbelt Park.

Throughout the years, you have been an incredible resource for us, providing direction, resources, information and strategies about developing and maintaining parks in Oakland. Frog Park involved Oakland's first-ever community-built park, which required getting permission to do all sorts of things not usually allowed in parks, and fostering working relationships with Alameda County, CalTrans, DMV, and the State of California, as well as with Friends of Oakland Parks and Recreation, various contractors, and the Parks & Recreation Advisory Commission.

Through it all, you shared with us your wisdom and creativity about getting things done, always with an eye toward supporting the community and volunteers within the framework of city requirements and budgets. We followed your advice, and as we said at the 10th anniversary celebration for Frog Park, we could not have created this park without you. Our community is so very much the better for having been able to work with you.

We wish you the best in your well-deserved retirement, and hope that we might continue to hear your thoughts on the park as we continue our second decade of work promoting parks and open space in the community. Thank you for everything you have done for us. We are truly grateful, and we hope that you will enjoy the one-of-a-kind stepping stone created by Jimmy Pederson, one of our FROG Committee Members, which includes the Frog Park pathway stamp and special items from the pathway.

City Proclaims 'Claremont School Day'!

by Shona Alexander

June 6 was a big day for Rockridge's Claremont Middle School. In fact, it was formally declared by the City Council to be "Claremont Middle School Day."

Upon the 100th Anniversary of the school's service to our neighborhood, Oakland District 1 City Councilmember Dan Kalb presented a Council resolution recognizing Claremont Middle School for its successes over the past century and for all the good work it performs for its students and for the city.

The resolution praised Claremont for its diverse student body, the many special programs the school offers, the dynamic leadership of the twin co-principals, Reginald and Ronald Richardson, and the strong partnership that has been forged among families, the community and the school.

Representatives of Claremont Middle School were on hand to accept the honor and to share stories during the fun and fabulous Centennial Celebration held on the Claremont campus.

At the event, school alumni met and mingled with current and former students, faculty, and staff, enjoying tasty pulled pork from Oliveto restaurant and a beautiful Claremont-shaped cake made and donated by Marla Erojo of Cakes Made by M.E.

The community that drew together to celebrate Claremont's past looks forward to building an even brighter future.

Principal Changes at Oakland Tech

submitted by Ronnie Spitzer

Oakland Technical High's principal Sheilagh Andujar announced she will be leaving her position of 10 years to become the Oakland Unified School District's Executive Officer for Special Education.

Due to the late date and unexpected change, school district administrators appointed Staci Ross-Morrison, assistant principal at Oakland Tech for nine years, to be the school's interim principal for the 2013-14 school year. The district will revisit the interim status of the principal in the spring.

Ross-Morrison has experience from within the Tech community, shares the school's focus on teaching and learning and holding high expectations for young people. She is well equipped to take the school to its next level.

Daily Bread Needs a Refrigerator in the Rockridge Area

by Joan Sautter, volunteer

Daily Bread needs a refrigerator. A nonprofit organization of individual volunteers, members pick up food at markets, bakeries, and restaurants – and from occasional parties and social events – for delivery to shelters, churches and other community resources serving needy folks.

Food pickups are often made in the evening after business hours and cannot be delivered to the receiving shelter until the next day during the shelter's operating hours. A refrigerator that would preserve perishable food between pickup and delivery would prevent spoilage, thus conserving more of the donations.

If you have – or know of – an available refrigerator, Daily Bread would be grateful to have it available for our project.

Ideally, it should be accessible to the volunteer without disturbing the home occupants. As an alternative, the group seeks an accessible spot in Rockridge to place a donated refrigerator.

Contact Larry, 510/653-3721, or Joan, e-mail: joanmsautter@yahoo.com.

Thank you for any help you are able to give to our worthwhile project.

LOST AND FOUND

One of the first things Mary did after her husband of 60 years passed away was to have a memorial locket made honoring their years together. It was a small, hexagonal pill box that opened on two sides. One side had their initials engraved on the face, inside was a lock of Bob's hair and a photo of them on their wedding day. The other side had a photo of each of them in Hawaii, one of their favorite vacation spots. Bob and Mary were avid College Avenue shoppers, supporting many small businesses in the neighborhood. Last month Mary was shopping at Tootsies and Trader Joe's. She was wearing the pill box affixed to a bow style pin. She lost it and she is heartbroken. She says it is almost like losing Bob again. If anyone has any information regarding the memorial piece, please call 510/484-8866.

SAFeway CENTER SHOULD BE MORE PEOPLE FRIENDLY, MORE ATTRACTIVE EDITOR:

I am a 35-year resident of the North Oakland/Temescal neighborhood and care deeply about the quality of life we create here. I am very concerned about creating a car-oriented shopping center at Pleasant Valley and Broadway. We already have too much traffic in this area.

We need to find a way to build a pedestrian-friendly, local-business-friendly, and local-resident-friendly design for this area that also supports the city's coffers, but in a truly sustainable way that makes our city more attractive in the long run.

A combination of residential and commercial would be far better than commercial only.

CHECKING OUT THE ROCKRIDGE COFFEE HOUSE CULTURE

by Judith Doner Berne

I don't drink coffee. Hardly any tea. So I am only an observer of the vibrant coffee shop scene that is so much a part of Rockridge.

But it's hard not to appreciate that each has its own following, seemingly based on its location, coffee roast and vibe – not necessarily in that order.

I counted up eight independent coffee houses along the mile-plus span of College Avenue within the Rockridge boundaries: Bica Coffeehouse; Bittersweet; A Chocolate Café; Cole Coffee & Café; College Point Café; Highwire Coffee Roasters; Hudson Bay Café; Old Brooklyn Bagels and Deli (where I take home bagels on Sunday); and Spasso Coffeehouse.

Elizabeth Falkner, who describes herself as “a neighborhood girl,” has imbibed in many of them.

She casts no judgments, but, according to her analysis, “Hudson Bay is the dark-roast old school coffee house. Highwire is kind of more like a new wave – a medium roast. Bica buys a lot of local roasters and is really into teas. Spasso has space in the back for Wi-Fi, and Bittersweet may be more of a chocolate place but their mocha espresso is so creamy and rich.”

Darrell Katz, a Rockridge resident who I graduated from high school with back in Detroit, can be found at a corner outdoor table at Cole Coffee several afternoons a week.

A retired mathematics professor, he reads and does crossword puzzles, coffee and confection in hand. Sometimes, he talks with other regulars with whom he's on a first name basis: Chris, Steve, David and Peter.

Katz introduced me to Chris, last name Diebenkorn, who I would describe as more of a mainstay than a regular. “I've been coming here for at least 20 years,” he tells me. “I come a couple of times a day to read and write about my dreams.”

A retired computer programmer, he drives from his home in the Berkeley Hills because, in his opinion, “the coffee's the best. They brew each cup individually. The atmosphere is working class.”

He doesn't think the chatter “is much different from what people talk about when they get together anywhere,” Diebenkorn says. “It's sometimes politics, sometimes gripes.”

Ben Kreith also bypasses other coffee shops on his way from his home in the Elmwood area of Berkeley to sip at Cole's

Choose homey comfort, quiet time for work or a quick, fueling cup for that last-minute dash to BART from among College Avenue's clutch of coffee cafés. /DON KINKEAD

“three or four times a week.” He likes the view of the Oakland Hills, the friendly servers and clientele, and it's close to all those very useful shops.

John Provencher, a Rockridge resident, was presiding over the coffee bar at Spasso when I visited.

He describes their clientele as “a lot of tech guys, people just relaxing and working, folks who come in with their laptops.”

At Hudson Bay, a man in a wheelchair was pulled up to an outside table. Also, choosing to sit in the sun, were two young women, one bottle-feeding her baby.

Sitting nearby was Steve Guinn, a former paramedic, and his dog Sophie. Guinn, who goes by the name “Hawk,” is a regular and says he bypasses a number of cafés to the south to hang out “at least three times a week. I've tried them all and this is by far the friendliest and has the best coffee.” An added bonus, he says, is their grilled cheese sandwich (five cheeses, jalapeño peppers, lettuce and tomato on rye), “the best in the East Bay.”

“There's an eclectic crowd here,” says Steve, who once ran a homeless shelter. He likes the way the staff handles the occasional panhandler. “They are gentle, compassionate and firm.”

Brett Remy, pointed out by the staff as another regular, was sipping an iced coffee and reading. He stops in after his day ends as a high school English teacher until it's time to pick up his kindergartener at North Oakland Community Charter School. “Normally I'm here grading papers.”

“I like this area,” says the East Oakland resident. “I like the bookstores, the library and the light filtering into the coffee shop through the windows. The coffee is good and the people are nice.”

Remy laughs when I admit I don't drink coffee. “It's like sending a non-drinker to review the bars,” he says.

Jon Larson was waiting for his sandwich order at College Point Café, a 30-plus-years old coffee house at the south-most end of College. “This is one of a kind,” he says. “It reminds me of Europe.”

Larson, who works at Jarvis architects next door, says coming to the café is “a good way to get to know the neighborhood. Dave here,” he says, pointing out another patron, “has the exercise place behind me.”

Local business people mix with California College of the Arts students and “we all get along,” says current owner Fred Barzin.

Ethan Connolly-Cafilisch is ordering a sandwich, salad and Peet's coffee to take back to the CCA campus where he's a junior. He tells me that I haven't quite covered the independent coffee house scene along College; well, almost on College.

There's also A2, the campus coffee house. It's open to the adult public, according to a college spokeswoman. But you, like me, will have to wait until CCA re-convenes for the fall semester to try it out.

City's Pothole Blitz Makes for a Smoother Ride

by Don Kinkead

So, when you've been out and about on your shopping rounds recently – driving from store to store – has the ride seemed a bit smoother, less of the old bounce and ounce?

You are not imagining things: Oakland's Public Works Department has been out in force pursuing its goal of filling 3,000 potholes in a pothole repair blitz between April 29 and June 26. According to Kristine Shaff, Public Information Officer for the department, 2,664 holes had been filled as of June 21. She added that she had every confidence the goal of 3,000 would be reached by the end of the blitz.

Two crews of three workers each have been carrying out the program, inaugurated about 10 years ago, Shaff said. They have been aided in their work by the addition of a new repair vehicle called a Hot Asphalt Truck. Still, she said, it's a lot of hard work. Crews have already used 140 tons of hot asphalt and 900 bags of cold patch.

The work can be dangerous, as well. Due to the noise of the machinery, the nature of the job, and drivers who may be impatient with the flow of traffic at a repair site, workers are often at risk. Safety standards call for placing orange cones at work sites, but drivers often fail to pay attention to them, Shaff said.

Potholes, of course, come in different shapes, widths and depths. The city prioritizes them by degrees of size, responding to the worst of the worst with a 1-day response. Overall in 2012, 9,000 potholes were repaired, more than the number reported by citizens. Citizen reports are helpful to the department, Shaff said, guiding it in structuring its work schedule.

There are several ways to report a pothole problem, and multiple reports are acceptable, even encouraged, to demonstrate the extent of the need.

1. Call Public Works at 510/615-5566
2. Use the smart phone app SeeClickFix (<http://www.seeclickfix.com/oakland/>)
3. E-mail pwacallcenter@oaklandnet.com for the online reporting form.
4. Visit the Public Works web site at: <http://www2.oaklandnet.com/Government/o/PWA/index.htm>

Then, enjoy the ride.

Overall, they said, crime incidents were up this month from last, but were down dramatically compared to this time last year. Questions from the audience included:

■ What if a report made on the non-emergency line gets no response? Answer: Make the report anyhow. It helps the police know how to distribute resources.

■ Which number is best to call in an emergency such as a fire, medical emergency, or crime-in-progress? Answer: 911 from a landline or 510/777-3211 from a cell phone. For non-emergency concerns, call 510/777-3333; for anonymous drug tips, call 510/238-3784.

■ Why are some police dispatchers impolite over the phone when taking a report? Answer: They're often stressed, but they've recently gotten more training on dealing with the public. If one is rude during a call, let the Police Department know and the dispatcher will be counseled].

It was also reported that the Department is working with the Rockridge District Association (RDA) to integrate security cameras on College Avenue into a police network. Opportunities are developing for integrated residential security cameras as well.

Chief Whent then discussed the Police Department's reorganization, one of several recommendations of the recent consultants' evaluation.

Rockridge is now in District Two of five newly drawn districts, and covers most of North Oakland. It is headed up by Captain Anthony Toribio, who many may recall was in charge of a similar area in 2008, until cutbacks forced a consolidation of districts.

The Chief said that additional resources, both sworn officer and civilian, are being allocated to each district. He noted that the city has held several police academies recently and, with the new budget, will be adding more. Additional police dispatchers are also being recruited and trained.

Whent also acknowledged that the Department's resources and responsiveness are not what he'd like them to be, but assured the audience that it is working on improving the situation.

Finally, he noted that the Department has been using a new program, Nixle, for citizens who want to receive important police alerts via text message or e-mail. Interested persons can sign up at <http://nixle.us/register/> for general alerts and at <http://bit.ly/VpsuyK> for emergency alerts for residents.

Mayor Quan followed up on the Chief's remarks, discussing the city's emphasis on restoring police department staffing closer to full strength.

She noted that the city is doing more to recruit Oakland residents for the police force and said she was proud that the latest police academy graduating class had a higher percentage of minorities, bilingual officers, and women than any other before. She felt it was important that the Department mirror the city's diversity. She also said that between turnover and additional new officers, the Department was building a new generation of officers.

During the extensive question-and-answer period, Mayor Quan and Chief Whent discussed many issues. The Mayor explained that city employees, having endured furlough days and gone five years without a cost-of-living increase, were due for a pay increase, but increased city revenue meant Oakland could provide a modest "bump" in employee pay and still work on restoring police and other services.

Chief Whent said that the city had no plans for a curfew for under-eighteen-year-olds. He explained that a curfew would raise difficult issues such as where to put violators. He also said that most of the serious problems that might be addressed by a curfew involve people over age 18, and they would be unaffected by a curfew.

The meeting ended with a warm round of applause for both the Mayor and the Chief. NCPC Chair Castro reminded everyone to come back July 11 for the next regular NCPC meeting, when Captain Toribio will be speaking.

Rockridge Doctor of Chiropractic, a Veteran, Offers Free Natural Treatment Plan for PTSD

by Dr. Mark Alan Heltemes, DC

Stress disorders and suicides among veterans and service members are at epidemic proportions. To do my part to fight these tragedies, I extend an offer to our community to treat three veterans with post traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) free of charge in my clinic.

I was motivated to offer free treatments when I read an article about the results of a 2010 study that found 22 service members commit suicide every day. Paul Rieckhoff, the founder of Iraq and Afghanistan Veterans of America, called the epidemic of suicides an "outrage." He urged national attention to the problem of vets struggling with "invisible wounds," and said traditional risk assessments are no longer adequate to the problem. We need to add "ways to identify life stressors and concerns earlier," he said. Current treatment options at the San Francisco Veterans Administration Medical Center (SFVAMC) are limited to medication and psychotherapy. Such medications can have unhealthy side effects and the therapy can take precious time that many vets simply do not have.

Stress is a maladaptive response pattern. In the case of someone with PTSD, the system is over-aroused and chaotic. It reflects conditions associated with hypervigilance or panic attacks, loss of quality sleep, and a host of other symptoms.

I employ a treatment protocol that reorganizes brain and nervous system function. It includes spinal adjustments to the nervous system to reset/reboot the system, health awareness (good habits; bad habits), nutritional and physical reconditioning education, biofeedback and neurofeedback.

Participants in the free program would visit my office in Oakland (6 blocks from Rockridge BART) between 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. twice a week for the first two months and once a week over the following year.

To be eligible for the free course of therapy, vets must have a current PTSD diagnosis and be under concurrent medical care from a local source.

Inquiries can be sent to me at 6245 College Avenue, Oakland, 94618 or Pridechiro@jps.net. My website is www.Pridechiropractic.com.

Please forward this to any service-connected individual you feel is in need. Participants will be chosen based on need and the ability to commit to the terms of the program.

Mark Heltemes served in the USAF from 1982 to 1987. He was stationed mostly in West Germany at Sembach Airbase, completing his duty at the Van Nuys Air National guard station. He has a meritorious service medal for the Lebanon Beirut war. He worked as an Inventory Management Specialist.

Be Prepared! Police Offer Free CPR Training

Consider this: Would you be able to help in an emergency or would you have to stand by, watching someone in trouble?

You can take action. The Oakland Police Department's Neighborhood Services Division is offering a free community Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) class in August:

Anyone 12 years old and older may take the class. Participants completing the class receive a certificate of their training that is good for two years.

Saturday, August 24: 9 a.m. – 1 p.m.

Pre-registration for the course is required, space is limited.
