You Wanted It? You Got It! Cole Hardware to Open in Rockridge

Hello, Rockridge....

by Adrianna Karp, Cole Hardware

We at Cole Hardware are thrilled to announce that we are setting up shop at 5533 College Avenue. We can't wait to get to know our new neighbors – so, let's start with introductions. We are a family-owned local hardware store, with four locations in San Francisco. The patriarch of our stores is Dave Karp. Today, at 98 years young, he is still a beloved figure among Cole Hardware customers and crew, and likes to stop by the stores to visit and show off his signature card trick. Dave's son Rick is

Cole Hardware president Rick Karp, left, with daughter Adrianna, Housewares Buyer and Marketing, and son David, Inventory Manager. At rear, Chris Jackson, RDA Operations Manager. /KEVIN FAUGHNAN

Cole Hardware's President and Keeper of the Karma, and grandkids David and Adrianna can also be found bustling about the stores.

Though much has changed in the stores since Dave first opened his doors for business, the motto that guides us today is the one he hung over the front door on day one: "There are no strangers here, just friends we haven't met."

Cole Hardware's top priority in striving to provide unbeatable customer service is rooted in this very attitude. Our goal is to provide what we like to

New Leadership for Chabot Elementary

Principal Jessica Israel Cannon

In her introductory letter to Chabot Elementary School families, newly-appointed principal Jessica Israel Cannon wrote, "The years your children spend with us build the foundation for who they are as learners and, just as importantly, as citizens of the world." In addition to support for classroom teachers to help students feel "welcomed and included," she emphasized the role of involved families helping children learn, and pledged to "prioritize building strong partnerships with all of our families."

RCPC Land Use Committee

The next Land Use Committee meeting is Wednesday, October 22, 7:30 p.m. in a meeting room at the Rockridge Branch Library. Topic: Check with the co-chair (652-5373 or stufash@aol.com) for updated agenda. Meetings are open to the public.

Land Use Update

by Stuart Flashman, RCPC Land Use Committee co-chair

■ Nautilus Residential Project – Telegraph Ave (East Side) Between 51st Street & Claremont Avenue

This large (over 200 residential units) residential/mixed use project would replace two approved but unbuilt projects, Civiq and Creekside. The land use committee, and some nearby neighbors, heard a presentation by the developer. In addition to the apartment units, which would range from one to three bedrooms, the project would include a 25,000 sq.ft. grocery store plus another 5,000 sq.ft. of small local retail shops. Ten percent of the units would be priced to be affordable for very low income tenants, entitling the project to a 35 percent density bonus and whatever height variance was needed to accommodate those units. The project would be 20 feet tall (townhouses) on the Clarke Street frontage, rising to 70 feet on Telegraph and 51st Street. There would also be a public walkway meandering through the project area reflecting the culverted Temescal Creek 30 feet below ground level, with a plaza at 51st and Telegraph.

Two major concerns are the entry to the commercial parking area and the grocery store loading dock, both of which would be off of Clarke Street at the intersection of Redondo, and could impact residents on Clarke and Redondo. The developers are still receiving community feedback, and final project plans are not complete. Comments may be sent to Andrew Cussen (acussen@nautilusgroup.com, 510/343-5593.

■ Temescal Apartments – West Side of Broadway from 51st Street to 49th Street

This is another large (130 units) residential rental project on the border of Rockridge. These units would all be market rate. The building height would be five floors (60 feet) at Broadway and 51st, dropping to four floors as the building moves south to 49th Street with a two-story westward extension in the middle of the block. The project would also include four units of two-story townhouses on Desmond just south of 51st Street. The building design has been refined (drawing will be available on www.rockridge.org) and the developer is planning

Locke & Associates: Adding to Local Art Scene

by Carl Schmitz

Just north of the California College of the Arts (CCA), on College Avenue near its intersection with Broadway, lies the office of art advisory firm Suzy R. Locke & Associates. While CCA's focus is on helping students "make art that matters," Locke & Associates is involved in much of what happens in the life of an artwork after its creation. Between educating collectors about art, helping to build art collections, and appraising artwork, Locke & Associates' practice is centered on interpreting, selecting, and setting the appropriate monetary value of art.

The most typical way in which a Rockridge resident would work with Locke & Associates would be when an art appraisal is required.

Appraisals are important for estate planning and inheritances, donations to museums and taxes, and are essential for insurance policies. In the aftermath of the 1991 Oakland Hills Firestorm, for example, when many art collections and important works of art were lost, appraisals were a critical part of helping affected residents move forward with resolving their losses and claims.

A longtime area resident, Suzy Locke has worked with clients such as Dreyer's and Kaiser Permanente to develop their corporate art collections, was a devoted supporter of the Magnes Museum, and has participated in panel discussions on art collecting at JFK University and the Oakland Museum of California.

Have you ever noticed that lime-green building just south of the Rockridge Branch Library? It's the entrance to McNally's Irish Pub, the first bar in Oakland to open its doors after prohibition ended in 1933. Opened by Bill McNally, long-time owner who died in 1973, the business has passed through several owners, but the décor and facilities have remained almost the same: no food, small bathrooms, and walls adorned with pictures of JFK and FDR among other historical items of importance. Stop in at McNally's at 5352 College and say hello to "Tony" who has been there 28 years and counting. I couldn't understand a "Tony" working at McNally's, but he explained that his mother wanted to make sure he got to America so she wrote "TO NY" on his forehead, and the name has stuck ever since.

Greenbelt Benefits from Creek to Bay Day 2014 Lively and Ambitious Volunteers Spiff Up Temescal Creek and Greenbelt

by Leonora Sea, DMV Neighbors

Eighty-five volunteers wielding rakes, brooms, pick-up sticks, shovels, hoes, trowels, McLeod tools (useful for removing slough and berm from a trail and tamping or compacting tread), and plenty of muscle and enthusiasm spent three hours the morning of September 20 making the creek portion of the Rockridge Temescal Greenbelt a cleaner, prettier place.

Kids were especially active participants, including students from Chabot School's fifth-grade science classes, fifth- to eighth-graders from SquashDrive*, the Cub Scouts, and a number of children who came to volunteer with their parents.

Altogether, the group picked up 12 bags of trash, filled 80 brown paper leaf bags, and generated close to 10 cubic yards of prunings. What a crew!

Come take a walk along the Greenbelt path, and admire everyone's handiwork. You will notice some plants have been cut back and others have had dead branches removed. The root-clogged creek section by the big willow near the DMV building is clear again. Virtually all litter and many invasive grasses have been removed.

Participants found a total of 702 cigarette butts (counted by the Chabot students), an abandoned and broken shovel, exercise equipment someone left behind, and lots of paper food packaging and plastics. Now disposed of properly, this material won't

One Woman's Battle Against Gun Violence In Oakland

Eyes on Rockridge

by Judith Doner Berne

We all read about the senseless killings of three small children in the gun violence that rocked Oakland in 2011.

But when Carlos Nava, 3, was killed in his stroller, Hiram Lawrence Jr., 23 months, in his father's arms and Gabriel Martinez, 5, in front of his daddy's taco stand, one Rockridge mother and grandmother acted.

Paula Hawthorn's thinking went something like this: "I have to do something. I'm retired. I first should do research because I know how to do research."

So Hawthorn turned her expertise (she holds a Ph.D. in Electrical Engineering and Computer Science from UC Berkeley) to investigating the best ways to combat gun violence.

"I did a lot of reading and talking to people and going to lectures about what are effective violence prevention programs." She zeroed in on Operation Ceasefire after reading "Don't Shoot: One Man, A Street Fellowship" written by criminologist David M. Kennedy. His strategy targeted inner city street gangs in Boston in the 1990s and has been successful in other cities.

Hawthorn's synopsis: "You do an analysis of who is doing the shooting. You pull in the major bad guys. You offer alternatives such as job training. And you tell them: 'If you do this again, the works is going to fall down on you.'"

Although the program had been adopted by the Oakland Police Department some years before, it had never been effectively implemented.

"I bought 40 copies (of Kennedy's book) and gave them to every member of City Council and every civic leader I could find," Hawthorn told me. "I take only a little bit of credit" about the OPD's recommitment to the program in 2013. "That has taken many hands, including mine and others."

Many consider Operation Ceasefire an important part of the declining murder rate in Oakland. Hawthorn is concerned that if Proposition Z fails in the November 4 election, its funding could be jeopardized.

Still, she hasn't put all her eggs in one basket. She and husband Mike Ubell – the new chair of the Greater Rockridge Neighborhood Crime Prevention Council (NCPC) – are on the board of Make Oakland Better Now.

Parents of two grown sons and grandparents of five, they often join the Friday night community walks through Oakland's high crime areas, where they've been among from 20 to 70 people to march and carry signs advocating "Peace in the Streets" and "Put Your Gun Down."

"When I can do it, I love doing it. I usually go to the East Oakland one," Hawthorn says. "People want to know that you care.

They come out on their porches and wave and cars going by flash the victory sign." The mayor, she says, and chief and assistant chiefs of police are often part of the group.

She and Ubell are also advocates of the ASK (Asking Saves Kids) program, directed at parents as a way to safeguard their children when they go to a new friend's house to play. "You ask if they have an unlocked gun in their house."

Hawthorn brought the national program to Oakland with help from Assistant Police Chief Paul Figueroa. She has presented it at two NCPC meetings. Now she is trying to find other people to take it to schools.

"I've seen her presentations," Figueroa told me in a telephone conversation. "They're entertaining and to the point. In any interaction with Paula, you quickly get a sense of who she is and what she's about – bringing peace and justice to the community in so many ways."

The Oakland Police actually reached out to her for help. "She and a couple of people she brought along helped me re-think some of the strategies the OPD could use in tracing guns," Figueroa says. "She knows where to be and when to be there."

For instance, Hawthorn is president of Soldiers Against Violence Everywhere (SAVE). Their work includes gathering at locations throughout the city to mark and remember where someone died as a result of gun violence.

"Paula has been steadfast in her activism on reducing gun violence in Oakland,"

Oakland Councilmember Dan Kalb wrote in an email. "I've been extremely impressed with her on-going commitment to gun control, the Ceasefire program, and overall public safety advocacy in Oakland. We're all better off because of her work."

Her Kales Avenue neighbors experience Hawthorn's commitment and leadership firsthand. "We call Paula the 'Mayor of Kales Avenue,'" emailed Erin Flynn who lives up the block. "She is dedicated to developing community – on our street, in Rockridge and across Oakland."

"Paula organizes the neighborhood phone list, the email group, and every block party we've had (with help, of course). She organized our CORE training (Citizens of Oakland Responding to Emergencies) and encourages earthquake preparedness among our neighbors so we can help each other if there is an emergency. Paula knows that bringing us together as a community makes us stronger.

"Paula is whip-smart, engaged, dedicated, hard-working, friendly, and fun. We are proud to have her as our friend."

"She's wonderfully calm and unflappable," adds Mary Catherine Haug, another neighbor. Some years back, packages were regularly being stolen from neighborhood front porches. Under Hawthorn's leadership, the neighbors organized and were able to solve and stop the thefts, Haug says.

The week of our interview, the neighborhood was preparing for its 11th annual block party. "I started the block party," Hawthorn says, "because I felt like we should do something fun instead of just having meetings about crime."

As OPD's Figueroa said: "She brings peace and justice to our community in so many ways."

November Elections

Ranked-Choice Understanding Oakland's Ranked- Choice Voting

by Zabrae Valentine, RCPC chair

Are you ready for another Ranked-Choice Voting (RCV) election? Oakland elects its Mayor, City Council members, City Attorney, City Auditor, and School Directors using ranked-choice voting. For all other races, you'll simply pick your single most preferred candidate, or vote yes or no on a ballot measure.

How RCV works: If a candidate receives a majority (50 percent+1) of the first-choice votes cast for that office, that candidate is elected. However, if no candidate receives a majority of the first-choice votes cast, then an elimination process begins. The candidate who receives the fewest first-choice votes is eliminated, and each vote cast for that candidate is transferred to the voter's next ranked choice among the remaining candidates. The elimination process continues until one candidate receives a majority of votes and is deemed the winner.

RCV allows you to vote first for your preferred candidate, but also to choose a back-up in the event your preferred candidate doesn't get a majority of the total votes cast. It also avoids the administration (and cost) of a separate run-off election when no

EBMUD Elections for Rockridge Ward

by Terre Beynart, Rockridge resident

Most likely everyone in Rockridge is interested in the water coming out of our taps. In this era of drought and climate change, it is critical that we engage as consumers to help ensure the continuation of good water quality and the development of forward-thinking water management policies.

Our water utility, the East Bay Municipal Utility District (EBMUD), is governed by directors representing geographic wards in the service area. EBMUD has seven wards. A ward boundary between Ward 3 and Ward 4 bisects Rockridge, roughly along Highway 24. Ward 4 is north of highway 24 and Ward 3 is south.

For the EBMUD director elections this fall, directorship for the 4th Ward is uncontested. That seat is held by Andy Katz, board president. The seat in the 3rd Ward is held by board vice president Katy Foulkes. Foulkes has served on the board for 20 years. Marguerite Young is challenging the five-term incumbent for 3rd Ward seat.

Foulkes has a long history of political involvement in the East Bay. She has served two terms on the Piedmont City Council, including one as mayor, two terms as president of the League of Women Voters call “positive dinnertime conversation” for you after your experience at Cole Hardware.

The result is that we deliver goods and services above and beyond what you’d find at the average hardware store. For example, our stores are virtual recycling centers where you can drop off old paint, batteries, fluorescent bulbs, soft plastics, propane tanks, small computer electronics, and more, to be responsibly recycled. Of course we will cut keys, mix and match paint, and advise you on your plumbing, electrical, gardening, and home improvement endeavors, too. And, we offer extensive selections in our housewares, pet and gift departments.

When we introduce nontraditional elements into our stores and business practices, we are responding to customer requests and needs.

So, we want to hear from you, Rockridge. If there is a niche you would like to see a hardware store fill in your neighborhood, or even if you’d just like to say “hello,” please reach out to us at service@colehardware.com.

Grand Opening; Local Hiring

January 1, 2015, is the target date for the grand opening in Rockridge. Meanwhile, please visit us at the Out & About festival on October 12 to introduce yourself, see Dave’s famous card trick and taste our private label Cole Hardware Cutting Edge wine. (We told you we were different!)

We will talk about job opportunities at the new store – as we hope to hire locally – and also tell people about our Community Assistance Partnership Program through which schools and nonprofit organizations earn benefits such as a 10 percent return on purchases their supporters make in our stores.

Ed. Note: Learn more about Cole Hardware at <http://www.colehardware.com/>

KEITH AVENUE RESTRIPING RESULT OF LONG PLANNING

EDITOR:

I was sorry to read of Ms. Bairum’s disappointment in the City’s decision to restripe Keith Avenue down to one vehicle lane with a bike lane (Letters, The Rockridge News, September 2014). However, the decision to restripe was based on almost two years of collaboration between the Public Works Department (PWD) and ROKA (Residents of Keith Avenue), with more than 30 member households. The issue was discussed exhaustively at numerous well-advertised meetings, the first having been attended by PWD staff. Flyers for every meeting were distributed directly to each and every residence on the street. The plan was also thoroughly vetted over several group email conversations. In the end, ROKA voted in favor of the restriping plan, and informed PWD of this vote. ROKA supported the restriping to protect the safety of the large number of children who live on the street. The restriping shifts vehicle traffic away from the sidewalk and serves as a traffic-calming measure, slowing down average speeds on the street. Funds used for the restriping did not come from the Fourth Bore Settlement funds, contrary to Ms. Bairum’s belief.

Oakland Tech Tome Celebrates 100 Years of Schooling

from material provided by organizers

In celebration of 100 years of educating high school students, Oakland Technical High School Centennial staff has produced a book celebrating the school and its history.

The community is invited to the official launch of this special book Saturday, October 18, 2-4 p.m. in the Tech library. The celebration includes live jazz by a Tech student band, refreshments, and the chance to mingle with alumni. The three most senior graduates from the 1930s will be honored, and a slide show will highlight a graduate from each decade. Past principals and current principal Staci Ross-Morrison will share their experiences of the school.

The book celebrates 100 years of Oakland Tech history, reflecting the history of Oakland, its people and the country. It features decade-by-decade chapters with beautifully presented photos depicting high school life from 1915 to the present.

Books will be available to purchase for $40. Cash, check or credit card accepted.

Parking is available in the lot on campus and around the school. Greeters will be at each door to direct you to the library. Please RSVP to: otcentennialbook@gmail.com. (RSVP not required to attend book launch.)

OPD Rotation Brings Back One-Time Area 2 Commander

Farewell from Captain Toribio

Capt. Toribio

I have transferred to command the Support Operations Division; Capt. Darren Allison is the new Area 2 commander.

This change is part of the Department's regular command rotation. Captain Allison was the area commander for North Oakland in 2008. He is eager to continue the good work we have started in Area 2. I know he will appreciate your support as we complete the transition.

I am proud of what we have accomplished over the last year and look forward to hearing about continued progress in the area of public safety in North Oakland.

— Capt. Anthony Toribio

At RCPC's September Board Meeting...

In this issue of The Rockridge News, the RCPC board of directors initiates the practice of sharing a list of the items discussed at its most recent meeting to increase community awareness of the issues considered and acted upon.

The board's September meeting covered the following topics:

- Discussed/approved a letter from RCPC to the City requesting a series of conditions be required as part of any new conditional use permit approval for the commercial space adjoining the Ramen Shop on College; the requested conditions reflect the results of a discussion with RCPC, the Ramen Shop, the landlord, and a neighbor.
- Discussed/approved cosigning letters to the City and to Safeway requesting a traffic management plan and a community communication strategy related to the planned construction in the Broadway and 51st Street area.
- Planned for the October Out and About event and the Halloween Parade.
- Discussed the "Rockridge Vision" survey currently in circulation and planned listening sessions on the same topic.
- Discussed candidates for open board seat and plan to make interview appointments soon after October meeting).

- Discussed College Safeway signage program, and negotiations with the Planning Department and Safeway to try to reduce their quantity, size and brightness. (While there is still plenty of opposition to numerous elements of this project, the effort to reduce the signage was reasonably successful.)
- Reviewed likely content for the October Rockridge News newsletter.
- Discussed September and October Town Halls, both on election-related information.
- Discussed Scenic Streets progress on Dog Park Renovation funding and FROG Park fundraising.
- Parking and streets:
 - Discussed the possible loss of parking at Dreyer's (because the company plans to build a fence at the parking lot to improve security).
 - Reviewed an update of the planned street diets on Telegraph, College and Broadway.
 - Discussed AC Transit's proposal to move the bus stop from in front of Child's Play at Chabot Road and College to another location on College not in front of a crosswalk.

parking; and finishing the loading dock. The inside of the store will come together quickly: The freezer boxes are in place; the employee areas and bathrooms are nearly built out; the cement floor is poured and polished; and the lighting fixtures will be hung soon.

Crews will soon be building out the individual departments including deli, meat, floral, pharmacy and produce.

Pedestrian and Traffic Changes

There are numerous pedestrian and traffic changes during this time. On Claremont, the sidewalk has been moved to keep pedestrians away from the loading dock construction. Casual carpool may be shifted occasionally in the next six weeks on Claremont between Alcatraz and College. There will be a worker posted there from 7-9 a.m. on weekday mornings to help keep everyone safe as they wait for rides.

Street Work

The street work being performed by EBMUD in the middle of College is done. The city of Oakland is replacing handicapped ramps at 63rd and College, so there will be construction work in front of Cole Coffee and Yasai in the next week.

On the other side of the street, Safeway is taking up the old sidewalk and replacing it with new, wider sidewalks. That side of the street will be closed to pedestrians for the next several weeks.

The grand opening will occur before Thanksgiving. Look to next month's update for more details.

Ranked-Choice Voting

candidate wins by a majority, since this winnowing process replaces the run-off. (This voting method is also sometimes referred to as "instant-runoff" voting.)

Here are a few reminders when you are filling out your ballot:

- RCV allows you to rank a first, second and third choice candidate for a single office. Your second choice will be counted only if your first choice candidate has been eliminated. Your third choice will be counted only if both your first and second choice candidates have been eliminated.

- If you only have one or two candidates you would ever in a million years want for a particular seat, then only list those candidates. You do not have to select three candidates – you can select one, two, OR three.

- Listing a candidate multiple times counts as one vote for that candidate; i.e., there is no benefit to doing this. (There is another voting system called "cumulative voting" that would give a voter multiple votes that could be spread among multiple candidates or all used on one, but we don't have that system in Oakland.)

For additional reading on RCV, check these sites:

of Piedmont, and 16 years on the Alameda County Local Agency Formation Commission representing special districts. She represents EBMUD on joint powers agencies with the Sacramento area and the counties of Amador, Calaveras and Alpine.

Challenger Young has worked as director for Clean Water Action California and has led successful campaigns at the local, state and national level to improve water quality and protect drinking water sources from pollution. She has served on numerous state and federal advisory committees including the Cal Fed Bay Delta Program, the State Source Water Protection Committee, Water Reuse Task Force, and the EPA Advisory Committee on Drinking Water Disinfection By-Products. Young has been endorsed by the Democratic Party, the Sierra Club, Clean Water Action and several labor unions including the AFSCME which represents most EBMUD employees.

The two candidates disagree on important issues. Young thinks that heavy water users should pay higher rates while historically low water users should get a break. Foulkes does not hold that position. Foulkes voted against Wild and Scenic status for the Mokolumne River (our water source). Young was an advocate of Wild and Scenic status for the Mokolumne River.

This will be an interesting race to watch. Stay tuned, do your research and get out and vote.

RCPC submitted a comment letter pointing out problems for nearby residents with the building's existing operations and how the problems – late-night noise, overflow parking, unsafe garage area, and compost and garbage bin odors – would get worse unless steps were taken to improve the situation. Planner Aubrey Rose (238-2071, arose@oaklandnet.com) is considering the comments and expects to make a decision shortly.

■ College Avenue Safeway Project – College/Claremont

Construction is nearing completion. Call RCPC (869-4200) with any problems. The proposed major sewer line in the middle of College Avenue has been moved to the side, and its installation should not cause major disruption. New sidewalks are being poured on both College and Claremont Avenue front-ages. Unfortunately, the new streetlights on the Claremont Avenue frontage are placed further in from the curb than usual. Although the sidewalk is being widened to still meet standards required for the disabled, pedestrians will need to be alert to avoid walking into the lampposts.

Projected opening date for the new store and retail shops is still mid-November. Not all retail tenants are known, but will include the 1st United Services Credit Union (moved from Rockridge Shopping Center), the drycleaner (also moved from the shopping center), Philz Coffee (a San Francisco-based Bay Area franchise with stores in Berkeley), and a bank – unclear which one. There will also be a Starbucks (this block is going to be “coffee central”) and a Wells Fargo located within the Safeway store.

Frequently called away from her Rockridge office for projects like working with collectors in Chicago or attending art fairs such as Art Basel, Locke still feels deeply connected to the neighborhood: “Rockridge is diverse, vibrant, and one of the most sophisticated communities in Oakland, providing shoppers and visitors with a feast for the eye and the palate through its shops, restaurants, and great public library.”

the nomadic tribes searched for new grazing areas for their herds. Mohammad and his son Baback continue their family tradition, learned in Iran and now shared with repeat customers in the Bay Area. They also buy and sell on the Internet to a much broader audience. Now, they are launching an online auction service that debuts October 18. More than 170 items will be available for purchase. And, check out their online auction catalog: <http://www.hazaragallery.com>.

■ Have you wondered why Eddie's Drive-In Liquors at 5491 College has such generous entrance and exit driveways for its parking lot? Before 1964, the site held a gas station, then was purchased and modified into the familiar building we know now. Current owner Wayne Johnson started working there about 25 years ago. After several years, he bought the business; now, son Adam has followed in Dad's footsteps. Soon, you'll see more healthy choices, as well as more than 300 different beers with more local selections coming in every week. The store is a reference point in many conversations, because everyone knows where Eddie's is.

■ A few doors down from Eddie's is Rockridge Royal Cleaners, 5455 College, which opened for business 29 years ago. Sunny has been the owner for the last 16 years, and can be found there just about every day even though she has six other employees. It's hot and hard work inside but she takes pride in delivering this service. Alterations are also done on-site.

■ Moving north on College, we find the Rockridge Café at 5492 College, opened as a small counter-only cafe in 1973 — the same counter you can see now. Ten years later, owner Bill Chung expanded the layout into its current configuration and served breakfast, lunch and dinner. In 2005, the menu changed to breakfast and lunch only. That decision appears to have been a good one, judging by the lines on any Saturday. Daniel, the assistant manager, started 25 years ago as the dishwasher and just enjoys working in the neighborhood he lives in. Try the Chorizo and Cheese Scramble if you want a little spice in the morning. The café is open from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

■ Rockridge Barber was founded by Domiano Tamburrino about 1921 and has been owned by Marty Hatton since about 1986. Twenty-eight years later, his hair is longer (I envy him) and greyer, but the service is just as good. Marty was recovering from surgery a few years ago and closed the shop at 5409 College for almost nine months. When he returned to work, he found a long line of apparent hippies waiting for him: customers who had waited until he was well. That is customer loyalty, and a tribute to Marty. Look for the wooden barber-pole outside (only during open hours) thanks to John, who had it made just a few years ago. However, the chairs inside go back to the '30s. Waiting customers can study the collection of early barber tools, or, since Marty's a baseball fan, listen to the game that's sure to be on the radio. Just what you'd expect. Call for an appointment: 652-4010.

■ Specialty Antique Rug company The Levant, 5450 College, does repairs, cleaning and sales, and has been owned by Albert Keshisian since 1964. The building and next-door parking lot were once a Safeway store, the second largest in Oakland at the time. Albert, a lively 87 years old, is a man of many interests; an appointment is necessary as he is often out on business. Blessed with a great memory, that gift came to the rescue of many of his clients who lost valuable rugs during the 1991 Oakland Hills Fire. Albert was able to describe and document many of their purchases and assist in the insurance claims. He was also active in the roller skating, bowling and movie theatre businesses located where Market Hall now sits. Albert learned the rug trade from his father starting at about age 7. He graduated from Claremont Middle School and recalls getting his first haircut at the Rockridge Barber in the early 1930s. If you are lucky enough to have a conversation with Albert, you will remember it for a long time.

■ George Carpenter and Walt Trube first opened a restaurant in 1931 where Market Hall now stands and called it Troop's Café. After a good measure of success, they sold the property to Albert Keshisian (see Levant, above), built their current location at 5445 College in 1945 and renamed the restaurant George & Walt's. The establishment was known for steaks, seafood (abalone was a favorite) and good wine. It continued offering dinner under various managements into the 1990s when Barbara Stelzriede, George's great-granddaughter, stepped back into managing and steered the business into a "sports bar" that will again be serving "pub food" in the fall. The bar has a strong neighborhood following from both men and women, is very busy on the weekends, has well-behaved clients and spotless premises. Rose is the bartender and ladies are always welcome.
